ECONOMY BILL DUE TODAY FOR SENATE ACTION

Opposition Runs Gamut of Personal Attacks on Measure.

STORM IS CENTERED ON MARRIED WORKER

Breaking Up of Homes Seen If Discharge Clause Is Enacted Into Law.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A flurry of Senate opposition to controversial features of the $150,000,000 economy bill, running the whole gamut of personnel restrictions agreed to by House and Senate conferees, accompanied presentation of the report in the Senate yesterday.

Action on the measure went over until today, after an hour and a half of fruitless debate. In the name of economy, senators were called on to approve the report, despite admitted personnel inequities. Any alteration will send the measure back to the House.

Projected one-month payless Federal furloughs may be extended to three or even four months in the case of departments with sharply curtailed appropriations, it was conceded by Senator Wesley L. Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the Senate conferees.

Extensions of Furloughs.

Furlough extensions could be made under the Senate "joker" giving heads of departments power to order indeterminate furloughs, to keep within appropriations.

A storm center in yesterday's debate was the conference provision for discharge of married workers, where husband and wife both are in the Federal service.

"In the name of economy we are busting up families," said Senator David A. Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania.

Directing his remarks at Senator Jones, who admitted he did not favor the provision, Senator Reed charged that married couples in the service would have to separate in order to retain their jobs.

Under phraseology of the bill, the section would apply to married persons "living with husband or wife."

Senator Frederic C. Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, and Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Republican), Wisconsin, joined Senator Reed in protesting the change.

Home Break-ups Feared.

"I can not escape the conclusion that it will force the separation of couples who have children to support," he said. "I know of three cases in which separation would be necessary."

As protests continued on provisions, ranging from curtailment of annual leave to fifteen days, to the 50 per cent cut in the night pay differential, Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, suggested the Senate refer the bill back to conference "to correct its imperfections."

Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, opposed this move. He characterized the married workers provision as "outrageous;" said there were many sections in the bill he did not like, but declared the Senate's only hope of saving the economies involved lay in passing the bill now and remedying injustices later. He said the measure would not pass this session if referred back to conference.

Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, opposed changes in the impounding clause returning money to the Treasury that otherwise would have been used to retain workers in the service. He contended that un-

Child, 4, Is Killed When Hit by Auto

New York Man Arrested After Bull Run, Va., Boy Expires.

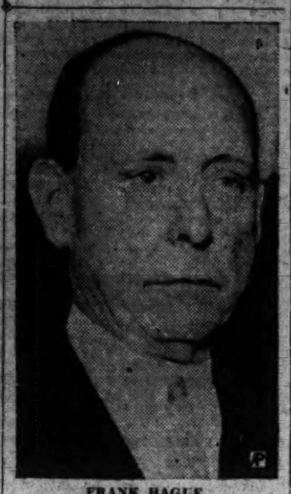
A 4-year-old boy was struck by an automobile and fatally injured yesterday while playing near his home in Bull Run Postoffice, Va.

Charles Lindbergh Schafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schafer, died of a fractured skull in Warrenton Hospital. James C. Mulligan, of New York, who police said was driving the machine which struck the child, was held under $2,500 bond charged with manslaughter. A Warrenton doctor, however, issued a certificate of unavoidable accident.

The boy was pinned beneath the car after it ran from the road, uprooting several fence poles. According to witnesses, Charles was dragged more than 35 yards after being struck. Mulligan said he did all in his power to avoid striking the child. A hearing will be held this morning at 10 o'clock before Judge Paul E. Brown.

Hague Says Roosevelt Would Lose Election

Smith's Floor Manager Asserts Party Has Stronger Men.



FRANK HAGUE.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, Al Smith's floor manager, tonight asserted in a statement that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, "has no chance of winning," if nominated by the Democratic national convention.

Hague, a vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, said he had felt out public sentiment in practically every State in the Union, and "I am brought to the conclusion that he (Roosevelt) can not carry a single State East of the Mississippi, and very few in the Far West."

James A. Farley, manager of the Roosevelt campaign, made the following comment:

"Gov. Roosevelt's friends have not come to Chicago to cry down, criticize or defame any Democrat from any part of the Union. This I believe is sufficient answer to Mayor Hague's statement."

Smith himself conferred with Hague while the latter was preparing the statement. It brought to mind that the 1928 nominee had not answered directly questions as to whether he would support the 1932 nominee.

Predicting that Roosevelt would lose

ECONOMY NEED AIDS ARMS CUT CHANCES

Further Optimism Felt for Acceptance of Hoover's Reduction Plan.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President Hoover's epoch-making arms proposal has entered the consultative stage abroad. Those countries which have not already accepted the plan which will reduce the air, land and sea forces of the world by almost one-third referred it for study and approval to their various foreign ministries. The next step probably will be taken early next week when the delegates meet again at Geneva to present the replies of their governments.

In the meantime the reaction from other nations continues to be decidedly optimistic. The State Department for this reason yesterday was the scene of great activity. Many of the diplomats had taken advantage of the fact it was diplomatic day to call on the Secretary or the Undersecretary.

Among the visitors who discussed the Hoover proposal and who contributed many expressions of congratulation and support were the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Japanese Ambassador, Katsuji Debuchi; the French and Italian Ambassadors, Polish Ambassador Filipowicz, the Ministers from Norway, Bulgaria and Greece and the Chinese charge d'affaires.

The gratifying response which the plan won at its announcement has subsequently been reinforced by other informal expressions of satisfaction from eminent men in various countries. Some negotiation will be necessary and is already anticipated on the part of France and her military allies, Poland, Roumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia.

The Japanese response was cordial but reserved definite approval until the plan could be reviewed in detail by the present Government. Japanese susceptibilities are somewhat aroused

Cleveland, June 23 (A.P.).—Newton D. Baker returned from a trip East today and announced that he will have nothing to say about the course of the Democratic national convention.

POWERS FAVOR DEBT HOLIDAY EXTENSION

Britain, France and Italy Would Suspend Payments During Depression.

Lausanne, June 23 (U.P.).—Great Britain, France and Italy agreed in principle tonight that the Hoover debt moratorium should be applied to inter-European debts and reparations until the return of relatively normal economic conditions throughout the world.

The three-power accord was reached shortly after the premiers of Britain and France had made known a tentative agreement on four questions of principle in the reparations settlement, including a decision that Germany can not pay now or during the period of recovery from the world crisis. At the opening of the Lausanne conference, the delegations had suspended European debt and reparations payments for "the period of the conference."

Now, on the basis of the Anglo-French accord, and the sentiment in favor of abandoning all European debt payments during the period of economic recovery, the French will begin negotiations with the German delegates. The accords reached today, however, do not definitely end the differences of opinion between France, demanding payments by Germany some time in the future, and Britain, favoring complete cancellation.

"I am very pleased with the progress," Premier Edouard Herriot of France said at the end of the day's negotiations. "The big event will be the conversations tomorrow with the Germans."

Woman G.O.P. Delegate Is Found Shot to Death

Bristol, N. H., June 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. E. Maude Ferguson, first woman State senator elected in New Hampshire and a delegate to the Republican national convention in Chicago last week, was found shot to death in the yard of her home tonight.

Police said Mrs. Ferguson was found lying in the yard of her home by her husband, Samuel Ferguson, and that a pistol was lying nearby. Mrs. Ferguson had been in ill health for some months, authorities said. Medical Referee Dr. W. R. Garland, of Plymouth, gave a verdict of suicide.

Adele Astaire Makes Court Bow Minus Titled Sponsor

British Society Wonders as Duchess of Devonshire Fails to Appear to Present Daughter-in-Law; Kathleen Knox, of Capital, Also Received.

London, June 23 (A.P.).—Adele Astaire, now Lady Cavendish, was presented to the king and queen tonight, but a shock of surprise swept society when the American dancer's new mother-in-law, the Duchess of Devonshire, failed to appear as her sponsor.

There was no explanation beyond the statement that the duchess was "indisposed," but the surprise was heightened by the fact that she also is mistress of the robes and her attendance on the queen is almost mandatory.

The acting mistress of the robes, the Dowager Countess of Airlie, took the place of the duchess both officially and as sponsor of the dancer, who recently married Lord Charles Cavendish, one of England's most eligible young men.

A red-coated, golden-buttoned doorman helped the once unknown Omaha, Nebr., girl, as she stepped from her limousine to the red carpet at the door of Buckingham Palace.

Lady Cavendish carried the usual three plumes, but her gown of pale pink satin was of the simplest severity, devoid of trimmings of any kind. The train was long and beautifully draped to match.

It would seem that the beautiful Adele can't get away from queues. When she was a slip of a girl she stood in them to get a job in a show; later, thousands waited in them to see her perform; tonight she waited in a long queue of motor cars for two or more hours outside the palace.

A crowd of many thousands, ranging from cockney to civil servants and tradesmen, as well as residents

ROOSEVELT MEN AIM TO CHANGE SELECTION RULE

Two-Thirds Nominating Requirement Object of Attack.

BATTLE FOR WALSH AS CHAIRMAN IS SET

Smith and Other Candidates Begin Study of Action Taken at Parley.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—The Roosevelt forces decided unanimously at a strategy meeting late tonight to fight for abrogation of the 100-year-old Democratic two-thirds nominating rule.

The meeting adopted a resolution making this declaration.

James A. Farley, manager of the Franklin D. Roosevelt group, also announced the selection of Senator Wheeler, of Montana, to conduct the battle for the naming of Senator Walsh, of that State, as permanent chairman of the convention.

Farley dictated the following statement to newspapermen after the conference, which lasted more than four hours:

Statement Issued.

"At a meeting of the friends of Gov. Roosevelt, consisting of leading Democrats from practically every State and Territory the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"'That it be the sence of this gathering of the friends of Franklin D. Roosevelt that we pledge ourselves to do all within our power to bring about the abolition of the two-thirds rule and the adoption of the majority rule in this convention.'"

Farley declined to amplify this statement except to say that the militant Roosevelt key men had a "general discussion of many topics and of our plan of action."

Alfred E. Smith and other candidates aligned with the opposition to Roosevelt declined at first to comment on the action of the Roosevelt forces, but immediately began a study of the party law and precedents.

Byrd to Comment.

Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia promised a statement tomorrow on this latest turn of preconvention affairs.

Nearly all of the headquarters of the other candidates had closed for the night when the huge Roosevelt gathering ended up with its momentous decision.

Senators Wheeler, of Montana, and Dill, of Washington, participants in the Roosevelt meeting, said afterward that the fight to eliminate the two-thirds rule would be made first before the rules committee and that only a majority vote would be required in the committee and in the convention to put their program over.

It was pointed out that a two-thirds vote to eliminate the rule would be required only in event the rule was adopted and then a motion to change it was made.

—Hull Plans Fight.

Senator Hull, of Tennessee, another participant, said he was willing "to do anything short of per-

Roosevelt May Go to Convention

Deadlock or Resentment of Rivals Would Lead Him to Appear.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Albany, N. Y., June 23 (A.P.).—Two developments at the Democratic national convention in Chicago would take Gov. Roosevelt to the scene to address the delegates, it was learned today.

The first eventuality would be the prospect of a prolonged deadlock between himself and his seven rivals for the presidential nomination. The second would be in event he was nominated and his advisers thought his presence would assuage the feelings of unsuccessful rivals and their followers.

While the governor said no later than yesterday he was not planning on going to Chicago, it became known that he still is considering the journey.

Son of Bishop Cannon Will Run for Congress

Los Angeles, June 23 (A.P.).—Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., announced today his entry into the race for Congress from the Twelfth District of California.

Cannon, registered in the voting lists as a prohibitionist, has filed on the Republican, Democratic and Prohibition tickets. He also is a delegate to the national prohibition convention at Indianapolis on July 4, 5 and 6.

VETERANS DEFY PLEA OF POLICE CHIEF TO LEAVE

"We Are Digging In" Is Curt Answer to Glassford's Statement.

THREAT OF SANITARY HAZARD IS SCOUTED

Leaders Investigate Report of Communistic Activity in Their Ranks.

Faced with an urgent appeal from Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, to vacate the city and confronted with a threat of communism among the ranks, the bonus marchers, through their commander, W. W. Waters, yesterday came back grimly with the retort—"We are digging in."

Gen. Glassford and the youthful veteran chief met in the bare, military atmosphere of the army's national headquarters. As soon as the police chief had made in writing a plea for evacuation, the reply of the veteran leader was forthcoming.

Decreased funds for food, annoyance of panhandling veterans, sanitation hazards—these and other arguments were advanced by Gen. Glassford.

Waters countered by pointing out that the treasury of the bonus army virtually was nil when it arrived here. Now it approximates $3,000, he said. Provisions and money donations, he said are expected. He deprecated the suggestion of sanitary hazards as advanced by District Health Officer Fowler.

Specter of Communism.

The presence of the communism specter in the bonus ranks became known when it was learned that the executive committee of the veteran army was investigating the alleged connection of several officials of the organization with "red" or other radical groups.

Waters today will address the garrison of at least one of the camps—that at Twelfth and D southwest—in a forensic campaign against communistic propaganda.

Only 55 veterans were reported leaving the city yesterday, but police believe many were departing via the "blind baggage" route. A few replacements were straggling in and a force of 500 from Southern States was reported nearing here.

Veteran leaders admitted retreating forces outnumbered reinforcements. However, they reiterated their previous stand that they were gaining food for the strong-hearted among the ranks by virtue of the fact that the discouraged were leaving.

Gen. Glassford's written appeal for evacuation ended with the assertion that "I have been a friend to the veterans and my advice to them is to initiate at once a plan of withdrawal from the Capital."

Glassford Lauds Conduct.

The police chief said the conduct of the veterans while here had been exemplary. He cited the sympathy of District residents for the men and told of the donations. He then said

Philippine Bill Pending in Senate

Measure on Independence Laid Aside Temporarily for Other Legislation.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday made the Philippine independence bill its pending business.

The action came on a motion by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

Robinson announced in making the motion that sponsors of the independence bill were ready to lay it aside temporarily if necessary to dispose of appropriations bills and the economy bill.

With this understanding, the Senate approved his motion, then resumed consideration of the conference report on the economy bill.

House Group Rejects Plan to Tax Utilities

(Associated Press.)

The House ways and means committee yesterday rejected a resolution to transfer the new revenue bill's 3 per cent tax on electrical energy from the consumer to the power company.

The decision was on a resolution introduced by Representative Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky. The vote against its approval was 12 to 9. A similiar proposal by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, has been introduced in the Senate but no action has been taken.

PUBLISHER IS NAMED FOR FINANCE BOARD

Gardner Cowles, Des Moines, Iowa, Appointed to Succeed Dawes.

(Associated Press.)

An Iowa publisher—Gardner Cowles, sr.—was appointed yesterday by President Hoover to fill the vacancy on the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Cowles, publisher of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, will fill the Republican vacancy left at the director's table by the resignation of Charles G. Dawes.

As the appointment was forwarded to the Senate, however, it was said at the White House that Dawes' additional post as president of the corporation would not yet be filled.

It was explained the corporation president need not be a member of the board, but no word was forthcoming as to whether this group would furnish the official or whether a new man would be appointed.

Cowles, at his Des Moines home today, said he did not know he was being considered until President Hoover asked him by telephone a few days ago to accept the appointment.

"Naturally, I feel deeply honored and will try to serve to the best of

President of Chamber Calls at White House

(Associated Press.)

Henry I. Harriman, of Boston, new president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was presented formally to President Hoover yesterday by the man he is succeeding in office, Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago.

Strawn told newspapermen as they left the White House that the call had been only one of respect, and that business had not been discussed.

INVESTORS CHARGE STOCK MART FRAUD

Woman Says She Purchased Shares Above Highest Quoted Price.

(Associated Press.)

From two disappointed feminine investors, the Senate banking committee heard yesterday a militant condemnation of the methods of Wall street.

Telling the senators investigating the stock market that the New York Exchange "condones a fraud when committed by prominent brokers," Miss Grace Van Braam Roberts, middle aged owner of an estate at Highland, N. Y., called for its strict control by the Federal Government.

Miss Ann Gushee—a serious faced young woman in a big straw hat, who works in a bank in Cheyenne, Wyo.—told of being sold Continental Shares stock by the Denver office of Otis & Co. in 1929 at 83, although she said it never went higher than 78 on the New York Exchange.

When Senator Carey (Republican), Wyoming, asked her what it is worth today she replied "it has very small value, if any." She estimated her losses at several thousand dollars, virtually all of her savings.

The witnesses were described by Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, as "lambs shorn in Wall street," but there was nothing lamb-like about the testimony of Miss Roberts.

She said she wanted to show the

Louisiana House Beats Bill to Repeal Dry Act

Pitts, on Stand, Blames Raichle for Conviction

Admits Perjury in Conspiracy Trial, Saying Former Attorney Prompted It; Refuses to Answer Number of Questions During Cross-Examination.

Showing open hostility toward Frank G. Raichle, G. Bryan Pitts, former head of the F. H. Smith Co., yesterday literally "stole the show" in the second day of Raichle's trial on charges of subornation of perjury and obstruction of justice.

Pitts refused to answer many questions, fell back upon his constitutional rights" on others, and in some instances flatly informed Raichle, who was cross-examining him, that he would not answer. He at one time placed the blame for his conviction on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 on Raichle's shoulders.

Pitts shouted that he didn't think he was guilty of conspiracy, and that but for Raichle's "messing things up" he wouldn't be where he is now. There was a dramatic ending to Pitts' testimony when Raichle asked him if he would lie on the stand if he thought that by so doing he would obtain some kind of consideration in an early parole from prison.

"I refuse to answer that," Pitts declared.

"That's all," Raichle replied.

Another development during the day was a gentle rebuke administered Pitts by Dozier DeVane, Pitts' attorney. This came about when Pitts said that he had been informed by DeVane that Raichle had gone to the Department of Justice and had villified him (Pitts) there to two Assistant Attorneys General.

DeVane jumped to his feet. He asked Pitts to refresh his memory, and when Pitts said that he still believed DeVane had told him that, DeVane denied that he had said any-

Chorus of Ayes Upholds Democratic Measure; Veto Expected.

CONFEREES TO KEEP BOND ISSUE FEATURE

Bill Provides for Lending of Funds to States to Help Unemployed.

(Associated Press.)

A gigantic $2,300,000,000 unemployment relief bill, designed to provide food and work for the jobless and give new impetus to industry, was passed yesterday by the Senate.

The Democratic relief program was approved and sent to conference with the House by a chorus of ayes without even the formality of a record vote, despite strong indications that it faces a veto from President Hoover.

It carries with it to conference the $2,300,000,000 bill sponsored by Speaker Garner which the House passed several weeks ago.

The final form of the bill will depend entirely upon the nature of the compromise worked out between the House and Senate.

The bill which goes to the White House is certain, however, to contain the bond issue feature to which President Hoover has indicated unyielding opposition, as both measures contain it in one form or another.

The Senate bill contains provision for a $500,000,000 bond issue to finance a huge public works program. The Garner bill would authorize a $1,200,000,000 program.

Borrowing Power Increase.

The Senate bill also would authorize an increase of $1,500,000,000 in the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Corporation. Of this $1,460,000,000 would be used for loans on self-liquidating construction projects. The remainder, $40,000,000, would be allocated to disposing of agricultural surpluses.

Just before passing the bill, the Senate attached the $300,000,000 emergency relief measure which it passed two weeks ago, because House leaders have indicated they would not consider it as a separate bill.

This would authorize the Reconstruction Corporation to lend funds to States on the basis of population for prevention of suffering and want among the unemployed.

The Senate amended the measure to make one-third of the funds available for immediate distribution without waiting for action by State Legislatures.

Emergency Relief Fund.

The Garner bill carries, in addition to the public works program, authorization for the Reconstruction Corporation to borrow $1,000,000,000 for construction loans and would give the President a $100,000,000 fund for emergency relief.

President Hoover has sought action on the $300,000,000 portion of the Senate bill and has approved the general principles of the $1,500,000,000 section but sought authority for the Reconstruction Corporation to lend to private industry.

He has denounced the Garner bill, however, as "pork barrel legislation."

There was little debate before the Senate vote as it was proceeding under a strict limitation of discussion.

Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, coauthor of the Costigan-La Follette relief bill, which the Senate rejected earlier in the session, denounced the measure as "totally inadequate" and said it would prove a "tragic disappointment to those out of work."

The Wisconsin senator said the bill would "utterly fail to stem the tide

BYRD URGES WORLD TARIFF CONFERENCE

Also Favors Equalization Fee in Suggestions for Democratic Planks.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, today urged that the convention pledge itself to convene an international conference on tariff.

"Prosperity can only be captured," said Byrd, "by an adjustment of tariffs to encourage other nations to buy and consume our exportable surplus."

He advised the Democratic party to lead the Nation from its "economic isolation and to use every effort to win back the cooperation of foreign countries and to negotiate with them rational tariffs on the basis of reciprocal benefits and quickened world trade, with protective duties limited to the difference in cost of production here and abroad."

No satisfactory adjustment of tariffs can be accomplished, however, Byrd added, until an agreement on foreign debts is made. He urged the Democrats to pledge themselves to a just settlement.

For the farmer, he advocated the equalization fee, and protection of the prices of staple grains and cotton by prohibiting bear raids and limiting short selling of commodities.

Byrd warned the Democrats to offer the Nation a program of restoratives and reconstructive measures.

"We can," he added, "write a platform in plain words that any one can understand without using a dictionary or consulting an oracle. I would like to see this platform written in words short enough and few enough to permit it to be painted on a billboard of moderate size, that he who runs may read."

Byrd reiterated his stand for submission of a new amendment permitting a direct vote on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

According to Earl Murphy, of 504 B street southeast, Hutchinson had complained to him ten minutes before he was found of having severe pains in his chest.

ECONOMY BILL DUE FOR SENATE ACTION

der reductions in appropriation bills and the economy bill, employes are getting a "double cut."

Senator Jones said the economy bill should be considered apart from the appropriation cuts.

Senator La Follette interposed:

"The senator can say that they are separate, but, so far as their impact on human beings is concerned, the effect is the same."

There followed a sharp exchange between Senator La Follette and Senator Sam G. Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico.

"The senator from Wisconsin is more responsible than anyone for the confusion that exists, because of his advocacy of the furlough plan," said Senator Bratton.

Mr. La Follette retorted that Mr. Bratton, an economy conferee, "could not escape responsibility for the conference report."

"I am not trying to escape it," Senator Bratton replied. "I did the best I could with the material the senator from Wisconsin gave us."

La Follette's Last Word.

Senator La Follette had the last word:

"If the conferees had approached this matter in a sympathetic attitude and not hurried to get away in time for the Democratic convention, they could have avoided many inequities."

Senator Reed called attention to conference elimination of an amendment which would have enabled retired officers to accept Government employment to bring their compensation, combined with their pension, up to their last active pay. He declared the deletion "unexplainable." As the section stands, retired officers may receive combined compensation from pension and postretirement employment of only $3,000.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, protested cuts in annual leave, particularly as they affect Navy Yard workers and other employes who now get no sick leave. Senator Jones said he did not think the leave restriction would apply to such workers.

Jones stated specifically that under his interpretation of the bill, District police and firemen, who receive an 8.3 per cent pay cut instead of a furlough, would not be deprived of their annual leave.

Overworked and Underpaid.

His explanation followed questions raised by Senator Henry F. Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, who said "in all America there is no more overworked and underpaid group of employes."

Debate opened with a defense of the economy report by Senator Jones, who nevertheless declared he did not favor all of the changes. Some 60 or 70 provisions of the bill had to be settled by compromises with the House, he said. He enumerated provisions about which the controversy centered, including the married workers clause, cuts in the night pay differential and provision retiring superannuated employes, in lieu of a presidential request for extension.

Debate closed with an assault on the administration by Senator McKellar, who charged the furlough plan was "political propaganda" from the White House. He said Cabinet officials have made no effort to cooperate in the drive for economy.

"The furlough plan is nothing in the world but the 10 per cent pay cut plan marked down to 8.3 per cent," he said.

Miami, Fla., June 23 (A.P.).—W. Bob Holland, newspaper writer and columnist, died at his residence here today of a heart ailment. He was 64 years old and had been ill only a few days. He had been on leave of absence since April 1, and was writing a novel at the time of his death.

Curry, 'The Boss,' Likened To King Tiger in the Jungle

Holds Power Over 40 or 50 Votes of New York Delegation.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—A room that resembles a bit of the jungle is the office of the mild-mannered little man whom thousands call "the boss," and whose associates expect will be one of the dominant figures in the Democratic national convention.

He is John F. Curry, Tammany leader.

His word is law to the legions of New York City Democrats who belong to the "Society of Tammany or the Columbian Order," a social, patriotic and benevolent body which George Washington once headed, and one of the oldest and most powerful of the country's political organizations.

None can speak for Curry, and he himself talks little—publicly.

He has never said, for example, which of the presidential candidates he favors, yet those who know his power say he will decide where 40 or 50 of the New York State delegation votes shall go.

The quarters of this ruler is a gray stone building which resembles a bank and faces Union Square, a favorite gathering place for radical groups. Tammany zealots call it the "wigwam."

The chief's throne room has been made to look as tropical as possible. The leaves of a huge potted palm hang down over his head. There are dozens of tigers in the room, for the tiger is Tammany's emblem. A 3-foot carved wood tiger stretches across the chief's desk. Another of equal size, made of bronze, dozes on a window ledge. A third, of inlaid tropical wood, hangs on the wall.

No matter where a visitor may sit, he is staring at one of the huge cats.

Few ever see the chief in this sanctum, although he has a word for nearly every one of the thousands who trek to the hall to ask for jobs, political favors, coal, food or rent money.

When the line begins to form, Curry takes up a position just inside a frosted glass partition, out of sight of the door. As each applicant reaches the front of the line, he is given an opportunity for a brief whispered conversation with the chief.

Few leave without smiles on their faces.

Nearby on a wall hang maps showing every one of the thousands of dwellings in Manhattan. They are colored by districts and precincts.

Curry can put his finger on any house and tell what Tammy leader is responsible there. It is one indication of the thoroughness that enables Tammany to roll up tremendous victories on election day.

Curry's associates revere him. They say he is always kindly, but firm to the last degree; that he never uses profanity and has never tasted liquor; that his greatest assets are his personal magnetism and his ability to smooth over the difficulties of others.

He is 58, with sparse gray hair; a native of Ireland, but a resident of New York City since he was 6 months old.

More Democratic Senators Depart

Leaders Quit Capital for Chicago; Nine Others to Leave Soon.

(Associated Press.)

Another batch of Democratic senators left Washington yesterday for the national convention, opening in Chicago Monday. They included Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the temporary chairman and keynoter of the convention, and Senator Walsh, of Montana, who is being advanced by the Roosevelt forces for permanent chairman. Others were Senators Harrison, of Mississippi; Bulkley, of Ohio; Bailey, of North Carolina; Neely, of West Virginia, and Tydings, of Maryland.

Nine more plan to leave within the next day or two, including Senators Connally, of Texas; Coolidge, of Massachusetts; Gore, of Oklahoma; Lewis, of Illinois; McKellar, of Tennessee; Pittman, of Nevada; Walsh, of Massachusetts; Byrnes, of Tennessee, and Bankhead, of Alabama.

Half a dozen senators are already in Chicago, or en route there, including Senators Cohen, of Georgia; Dill, of Washington; Glass, of Virginia; Hull, of Tennessee; Long, of Louisiana, and Wheeler, of Montana.

Chicago Had No Chance For Loan, Says Cermak

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Chicago "never had a chance" for relief through Congress or the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Mayor Anton J. Cermak observed today on his return from Washington and New York. He said Congress was too interested in the coming Democratic National Convention to heed the city's plea for a loan to pay its employes.

"We never had a chance," said Mr. Cermak. "When we got to Washington we found the big interest was in the Democratic Convention. Everybody was playing the good old game of politics, and we were told that if the law creating the Finance Corporation was amended to permit loans to States and cities both Republicans and Democrats would vote against it.

ROOSEVELT'S DEFEAT PREDICTED BY HAGUE

New Jersey if he were nominated, Hague said the convention had before it the names of several men who were better fitted for the nomination than Roosevelt.

He named Smith, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago; Speaker John N. Garner, Newton D. Baker, of Ohio; Gov. White of Ohio, Gov. Murray of Oklahoma, former Senator Reed, of Missouri; former Gov. Byrd of Virginia and Senator Lewis, of Illinois, any one of whom meets the present situation better than the Governor of New York."

"It has been demonstrated," Hague said, "in the contested primaries in which Roosevelt was a candidate, that he has never carried a single large city, which clearly indicates that the people in the populous centers do not regard him as the right man to lead.

"In the State of California, with the entire organization and the Democratic machinery with him, he failed to carry the large centers three to one and was overwhelmingly defeated. Massachusetts told an even more disastrous story.

"The Democratic party has the greatest opportunity in its history. Now is the time for the leaders representing the various delegations at present supporting Roosevelt to analyze what I say and see for themselves that their candidate can not be victorious.

"It is very apparent that any man who can not carry New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and the other New England States, together with the Middle West and only a few States in the Far West, is not the man for the party leaders to choose in this crisis.

"It is commonly known that the Republican leaders are hoping that Gov. Roosevelt will be the nominee and some have publicly expressed themselves that their only hope for victory lies in the possibility of Roosevelt becoming the candidate," he said.

Eagan Is Honored By Board of Trade

Members Give Dinner to Colleague Who Directed Shad Bake.

Members of the Washington Board of Trade last night honored Thomas L. Eagan, chairman of its 1932 shad bake committee, with a dinner and entertainment at the Kenwood Country Club. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner, headed a group of distinguished guests.

Mr. Eagan was presented a handsome set of golf clubs as a token of the organization's appreciation of his successful handling of the shad bake at Bay Ridge, Md., last month.

Among those at the dinner were Ben T. Webster, president of the Board of Trade; George Offutt, immediate past president; George Plitt and E. C. Brandenburg, past presidents.

A program of entertainment was presented under the direction of Granville Gude, entertainment committee chairman. This included music by Thelma Schilling and her orchestra and specialty numbers by Misses Billie Severence, Audrey Heathcoth and Mary Hampton.

Senator Capper Explains Credit Union to Hoover

Desirable features of the credit union bill, which would permit incorporation of local groups for the purpose of lending money to members, yesterday were outlined to President Hoover by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, author of the measure.

The bill has passed both houses and is awaiting the President's signature. Senator Capper was called to the White House for more information on the measure. Senator Capper went over the bill with the President, pointing out its possibilities in the Government services, where employes, hit by economic conditions, could borrow small sums at low rates of interest.

ROOSEVELT MEN AIM TO CHANGE OLD RULE

sonal assault to have the convention avert another Madison Square Garden fiasco."

There were hints of a vote to dodge the dispute in store over the permanent chairmanship by putting in a compromise candidate instead of either Jouett Shouse or Senator Walsh, of Montana—the latter of whom is favored by the pro-Roosevelt ranks, who object strenuously to Shouse.

Then, too, William Gibbs McAdoo went out of his way to pay a call on his 1924 foe at Madison Square Garden—Alfred E. Smith—a visit which set tongues wagging. For 103 ballots they were pitted against each other eight years ago, but now they are both aligned in opposition to Roosevelt.

Will Back Two-Thirds Rule.

Looking to the interests of Speaker Garner's candidacy, McAdoo joined others of the anti-Rooseveltians here who have declared against any attempt to set aside the two-thirds rule. He expects the California delegation to stay with Garner, and that it and Texas will be followed by other States for the Speaker after the first ballot.

Smith headquarters conceded to Roosevelt only 570 of the 691 votes claimed for him on the first ballot. This was done in a statement issued after Smith had disputed the prediction by Farley that Roosevelt would win on the first ballot. But Farley stuck to his claim.

Meeting with newspapermen, Smith spoke of the large map hung on the wall of Roosevelt headquarters bearing large patches of red for pro-Roosevelt States and with other colors for States won by his rivals.

He praised it as an exhibit, saying: "The idea was stolen from the Anti-saloon League," having been used by Wayne B. Wheeler years ago to impress State Legislature "with the dry States painted blue and the wet States red."

Firemen's Group to Meet.

Samuel B. DeVaughan, chairman of the housing committee for the Virginia State firemen's convention, to be held in Alexandria August 9 to 12, inclusive, has called a meeting of his committee to be held at No. 1 Engine House, Alexandria, at 8 o'clock tonight.

DEMOCRATS TO PUT EMPHASIS ON CRISIS

Fight Expected on Repeal Plank; Hitchcock Against Binding Party.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—The Roosevelt-controlled resolutions committee went to work today to draft a Democratic platform emphasizing economic issues and providing submission of a prohibition repeal amendment.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, the choice of the forces of Gov. Roosevelt for chairman of the platform framers, presided. He advocated paramount attention on the economic crisis.

The opening session produced considerable argument over routine details. Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma held the floor much of the time. He had an economic platform of his own in his pocket, but withheld it for the time being.

Hitchcock States Views.

Trouble was brewing also on a fight by the Easterners for a plank committing the Democrats to repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But Hitchcock, in an interview, declared emphatically against pledging the party. Recalling that he voted against the eighteenth amendment as a member of the Senate from Nebraska, he asserted:

"I am not willing to bind the party to a proposition certain to drive out members holding other views. I imagine a direct, simple statement will be made favoring submission of a repeal amendment. We just take up the prohibition as a party issue. It was not adopted on partisan lines and should not be considered in a partisan manner.

Ready to Meet Problem.

"I think the distressing economic crisis is paramount and I think the people want that issue emphasized. The Democrats are ready to meet the problem."

Hitchcock said the Democrats would do well in facing the economic situation to advocate reduction of the tariff. Personally, he favored a cut to the level of the Underwood act of 1913. On that point considerable debate was in store. He also recalled that the Republicans condemned the Democrats in 1920 for an inflation program, but asserted "the cause of our trouble today is the deflation that ensued under the Republican rule."

Open hearings were begun late today before the committee sought to begin the actual drafting of the many planks which usually go into a party platform.

Roosevelt Ians in Control.

The Roosevelt Ians showed themselves in control in the opening session. A. Mitchell Palmer, representing the District of Columbia, made the routine motions, which were carried after some argument.

Senators Dill, of Washington, and Wheeler, of Montana, both Roosevelt adherents, and Urey Woodson, of Kentucky, were named by Hitchcock to draft the program for hearings.

In response to demands by William G. McAdoo, of California, and William C. Fitts, of Alabama, the hearings were ordered begun late today.

The committee agreed to seat both of Minnesota's claimants to the committee position pending settlement of the dispute between the rival Minnesota delegations. Robert M. Butler and E. C. Crogin were the delegates seated.

Mr. Jefferies' arm was broken and the others treated for cuts and bruises.

Mayor Walker Departs For Chicago Gathering

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker, who has smiled his way through long months of city government investigations, departed for the Democratic national convention at Chicago at 4 p. m. today, confident and gracious, as always, but silent on pertinent subjects.

A delegate to the convention, and slated for a post on the resolutions committee, the departing mayor could not be led by his questioners to talk about prohibition, party dissensions or the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has been asked to remove Mr. Walker from office.

Victim of Dry Raid Shooting Expires

Policeman to Get Hearing Wednesday in Death of Gun Victim.

A coroner's inquest was held yesterday at police headquarters following the death in the Alexandria Hospital of Alexander Jackson, colored, 37 years old. Jackson was shot June 16 as Policemen Russell Hawes and Earl Watkins were searching his house for liquor.

Coroner Beattie, after hearing the testimony of four persons, gave a verdict to the effect that Jackson came to his death as the result of a pistol wound inflicted by Policeman Hawes.

Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan, who appeared for the State, announced that Hawes will be given a preliminary hearing in police court next Wednesday morning.

ROOSEVELT GROUPS BLOCK SPEED MOVE

Decline to Testify Before Body Named to Study Delegate Contests.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—The time-saving effort attempted by the Democratic national committee in creating a subcommittee to take initial testimony in national convention delegate contests proved a complete failure today when pro-Roosevelt delegations refused to testify.

However, four hours of testimony was taken from opposing delegations from Minnesota and Puerto Rico after an anti-Long faction from Louisiana, headed by former Gov. J. Y. Sanders, declined to proceed in the absence of their opponents.

Sanders said he was ready and willing to be heard, but thought it would be "manifestly unfair" to present his case in the absence of Senator Long, who yesterday challenged the subcommittee's authority. Long has promised his support to Gov. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, although the other side is believed not unfriendly to the New Yorker.

Refuse to Adjourn.

The subcommittee decided not to take any testimony in the Louisiana case and said it would report the circumstances to the full committee which meets tomorrow afternoon to hear all sides in the seating controversies.

Taking the subcommittee completely by surprise, J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, and Norman E. Mack, of New York, national committeemen favoring Roosevelt and not members of the subcommittee, walked into the hearing room in the Congress Hotel and demanded that in view of the situation presented by Louisiana all other contests be referred to the full committee.

Chairman J. T. G. Crawford, of Florida, and other members of the subcommittee refused to adjourn the hearing, however, and Minnesota's case was called.

Two Groups Oppose Long.

Previously, a third delegation from Louisiana, headed by former Lieut. Gov. Fernand Mouton, had asked to be heard.

"Sanders' delegation is not the only one opposing the Kingfish," said Mouton, referring to Senator Long. "We are perfectly willing to waive all technicalities and go ahead. We believe we have a packed case."

After William F. Donahue, of the Roosevelt-instructed delegation from Minnesota, had declined to testify on jurisdictional and unpreparedness grounds, Neil Cronin, representing the contesting faction, presented his side and was followed by Mrs. Ruth Haynes Carpenter and John E. Regan.

They contended the Donahue group excluded 141 Hennepin County (Minneapolis) delegates from their State convention and appointed 260-odd delegates without authority and voted them in the convention.

30,000 SEE RITCHIE LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

"Maryland Special" Takes Governor and Delegates to Convention.

Baltimore, June 23 (A.P.).—More than 30,000 Marylanders cheered Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, their favorite son for the presidential nomination, as the "Maryland Special" rolled out of Baltimore late today, carrying more than 100 delegates and spectators to Chicago for the Democratic national convention.

"With a thinking, believing, fighting faith in American institutions," the governor declared at a demonstration in front of the station, "I pledge the earnest efforts of the Maryland delegation to the political ideals and promise of American democracy."

His address was brief, thanking the people for their support and touching on his principles concerning national questions. The ceremonies and talks were broadcast over a Nation-wide hook-up.

A donkey, carrying two signs, mingled with the crowd. "Give me Ritchie," said one sign, and the other read, "I want Ritchie to ride me to the White House."

"Although you have conferred upon me four times the highest honor the people of this State can confer," Gov. Ritchie said, "you know that I am still just one of you, making the same effort to do my duty.

"This tribute is your hope and your confidence that we who entrain for Chicago will go there heartened with the faith that is Maryland and determined to hold that faith high in the councils of the great political party to which we belong.

"Ours is the inspiring opportunity to stand for a platform of party principles clear, definite and honest and American through and through." The principles for which the Maryland delegation at Chicago will stand and will fight for, he said, "call for rigid economy in the cost of government and for decrease in the confiscatory taxes which are overwhelming the people."

Short stops were made at Cumberland and Brunswick, Md., and Martinsburg, W. Va.

Hull Says Illinois Is Safe for G. O. P.

Confers With President Over Party's Chances in His State.

(Associated Press.)

Representative William E. Hull (Republican), Illinois, told newspapermen yesterday after a conference at the White House he had informed President Hoover that conditions within the Republican party in Illinois are "500 per cent better now than six months ago."

As a whole, Hull said, there has been no dissension within the party in Illinois except over prohibition. He said he believed this breach had been healed by the plan adopted at Chicago for submitting a new amendment to the people.

"I am a strong wet," he said, "but I am satisfied that we have got the best plank available."

300,000 MEN ATTEND CEREMONY IN DUBLIN

Pope's Agent at Eucharistic Congress Is Honored at Service.

Dublin, June 23 (A.P.).—Three hundred thousand Catholic men, bareheaded in the soft Dublin dusk, paid tribute tonight to their religion and to Cardinal Lauri, the Pope's messenger to the eucharistic congress.

Flanking the high altar at the outdoor ceremony in Phoenix Park were lesser princes of the church and on a special white and gold throne sat the legate, attired in red robes.

Places for the clergy were reserved near the altar. Among the thousands of the members of the laity massed in a vast block were representatives of many nations, but most of them were Irish.

There were no women whatever, for this service was solely for the men. Singing was led by a special male choir. The voices were carried to every part of the park by a system of loud-speakers.

Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, speaking in English, said that "other nations have lost the faith and kept their cathedrals, but Ireland has lost her cathedrals but kept her faith."

Bishop McNeely of Raphoe delivered an address in Gaelic.

After bestowing the special blessing of the Pope on the assemblage, the papal legate left his throne and passed among the audience riding in a small American automobile.

As he rode down the aisles tremendous cheers arose and lighted candles were held up, making the park a sea of twinkling points of flame.

At an afternoon meeting, American pilgrims discussed the work of the Irish Catholic laity in the United States.

Kidnapers Seized, Holding Victims

2 Men in Arkansas Admit Engaging in Battle Fatal to Deputy.

Murfreesboro, Ark., June 23 (A.P.).—Two men who officers said admitted terrorizing communities in northern Louisiana and engaging in a gun battle in which a deputy sheriff was slain, were captured near here today with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Taylor, of Franklin Parish, La., who were kidnaped last night by the men.

The men gave their names as John B. Thomas, 40, and Walter Bearden, 37. They admitted, said Sheriff M. D. Cumings, who made the arrests, they robbed a bank at Baskin in Louisiana last Tuesday, and exchanged shots with a posse in which Deputy Sheriff Elmo Ferguson, Warsaw Landing, La., was killed. They said they did not know the officer had been killed.

They said a third man left them at Ruston, La., at 5 a. m. today and denied he was wounded in the gun fight at Warsaw Landing. They were captured at a filling station after forcing Taylor to drive them from Louisiana to Arkansas.

VETERANS DEFY GLASSFORD'S PLEA TO EVACUATE DISTRICT

he believed further drives for funds would prove "unpopular."

"Continuation of their stay in Washington," Gen. Glassford's statement said, "can not result in any tangible benefits, and the Federal Government shows no intention of taking cognizance of their presence here. They can serve their cause better by returning to their homes and fighting their political interests at the polls."

Glassford said a mimeographed list will be furnished all Congressmen today, showing the number of veterans from their districts. The Congressmen will be asked to communicate with their various jurisdictions and attempt to obtain funds to transport the veterans to their homes.

Army "Here to Stay."

Waters' written reply stated the attitude of the headquarters of the army was that "We are here to stay until we get the bonus—this, regardless of the fact whether it is in 1932 or 1945."

"We are digging in," the statement continued. "The reinforcements now en route will force an extra session of Congress. We have accommodations for all veterans with an honorable discharge.

Answering Glassford's arguments, Waters said orally that the bonus "is not a dead issue."

"We are going to sit tight," said Waters, in the expectation that if the supplies should run out the Federal Government will have to feed us. We feel this is a Federal Government responsibility and we do not believe the people will let the Government sit by while 20,000 men starve in the Capital. If necessary, we are prepared to hold the lines under starvation conditions. We would be starving if we were not here."

Ready to Take Camp Meigs.

With regard to Camp Meigs, Waters said it is an ideal site for the accommodaion of 10,000 men. He said "It is the intention of headquarters to meet the Camp Meigs situation by sending as many men as will go to Camp Meigs, despite Gen. Glassford's order."

It was learned yesterday that District Health Officer Fowler had not completed his survey of the sanitation conditions at Camp Meigs, which is near the new market on Florida avenue northeast. Seventy-four members of the bonus army, mostly family groups, have squatted on the heights of the war-time cantonment site and actually seem to be enjoying their sojourn there.

Opposition to early adjournment of Congress was made on the floor of the House yesterday by Representative Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, a stanch bonus advocate. He said it was the duty of those who killed cash payment of the bonus to offer something else "to cure this depression."

Rankin Against Adjournment.

"Last week," said Rankin, "we offered a bill that would have expanded the currency, paid off the soldiers' adjusted service certificates, stimulated the prices of commodities and, in my opinion, would have brought relief to all the American people." He added that "any member of the House or Senate who votes to adjourn under these conditions ought not to have the audacity to ask for reelection."

The District Commissioners yesterday dispatched the following telegram to the Governor of Texas:

"Information from president Texas & Pacific Railway states 800 to 1,000 bonus marchers from California, Arizona territory are in El Paso bound eastward to Washington. Urge you to use your good offices to persuade marchers not to proceed. Housing and health conditions bad here and becoming worse. Quarters uncomfortable, funds and food supply decreasing. Congress will adjourn before marchers can arrive, so trip would be futile to secure bonus legislation at present time."

California Veterans Take Train for Capital

El Paso, Tex., June 23 (A.P.).—More than 1,000 "bonus marchers" from California left here today by motor vehicles and a freight train for Washington. About 800 men departed aboard a Texas & Pacific freight, although railroad officials had warned the men would not be allowed to ride. Police declined to act. There were no disturbances.

Motor cars and trucks provided transportation for 450 men; women and children. The city donated ten gallons of gasoline and two quarts of lubricating oil for each vehicle.

Al Smith Club Told Of Bonus Camp Life

Existing conditions at the various camps of the bonus army were pictured to members of the Al Smith Club, of Washington, last night at a meeting at the Arlington Hotel. Life at the camps was described in detail by Col. Crissinger and A. L. Cox, both members of the "army."

Following the speeches, the club adopted a resolution indorsing the friendly relationship between Washington police and the bonus marchers.

QUAKE DEATHS 100, DISEASE PERIL RISES

Injured Not Being Cared for Adequately, Mexican Executive Says.

Colima, State of Colima, Mexico, June 23 (A.P.).—The smallest state in the republic was virtually demoralized today in the wake of a month's siege of earthquakes, which culminated in a tidal wave that took perhaps 100 lives.

Gov. Salvador Saucedo appealed for the help of the World Red Cross as he gathered reports of the wrecking of the resort town of Cuyutlan, and felt the inadequacy of Federal and State forces on hand.

The capital, already burdened with the injured of previous recent quakes, today absorbed some 2,000 refugees from Cuyutlan.

All of these, including the governor himself, were sleeping in the parks, afraid to return to the shelter of what homes remained, lest the dreaded shocks visit the city again.

Appealing for food, medicine, money and tents, Gov. Saucedo declared the injured were not being adequately cared for. The chief executive said not much money was necessary, but unless some came immediately the death toll would grow because of the danger of pestilence.

"We are doing all we can," the governor said, "to relieve the suffering but our forces are wholly inadequate. Virtually the whole state is demoralized."

The governor described the scene at Cuyutlan as appearing almost hopeless. The tidal wave, eighteen miles long, bore down on the resort right behind an earthquake.

Most everybody had hurried to the open beach for protection from the quake, when the rushing wall of water caught them. Many were crushed against buildings as the water surged inland. As it returned to the sea, many others were caught in the undertow and drowned.

Only the main business buildings were left undamaged. Federal troops and State employes were trying to clean up the debris today as all residents evacuated. Fish, tossed high and dry all over the town, were being raked into piles and burned by the thousands to avoid a possible epidemic of disease.

INVESTORS CHARGE STOCK MART FRAUD

committee "the utter dishonesty of the New York Stock Exchange as dominated by Mr. Whitney." She referred to Richard Whitney, its president, who has testified previously in the investigation.

In vigorous terms, Miss Roberts asserted she lost several hundred thousand dollars in Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies oil stock and placed the blame on Hayden, Stone & Co., New York brokerage firm, which she said sold it to her in 1920. She bitterly condemned the stock exchange for failing to discipline the company.

Although she said she recovered $18,000 from Hayden, Stone & Co. in a court action, Miss Roberts testified that Whitney and other officials persistently refused to comply with her demand that the firm be barred from the exchange.

Testifies on Pool.

The witness said Richard Hoyt, customers' man for Hayden, Stone & Co., was himself selling the stock at the same time he was urging her to buy, adding he and his wife disposed of all of their 1,700 shares in 1920.

Members of the firm, she contended, participated in a pool on the stock and "kept their customers from selling until members of the pool with inside knowledge got out."

Resolving if possible to punish those she held responsible, Miss Roberts said she consulted numerous New York lawyers but was advised she could do nothing.

A member of the exchange, she said, told her the effort would be unavailing and remarked "the Stock Exchange is the greatest Monte Carlo in the world."

"This dishonesty will go on," Miss Roberts concluded, "until the Government takes the Stock Exchange under its control."

From David Stock, an investigator, the committee heard more testimony concerning the recently presented case of William Fox, former head of the Fox Film and Fox Theater Corporations.

Stock told of what he described as a "high pressure sales campaign" conducted by Fox in mid-October, 1929, to get the public to invest in Fox Theater Corporation stock.

Within ten days, he said, the market collapsed and the stock fell from 29¾ to 10. He added that the financial condition of the company was such that "the collapse was likely even though the crash on the market had not come."

He named Mayor James J. Walker of New York as one of many prominent citizens who "appeared on the stages of theaters throughout the country testifying to the business integrity of Mr. Fox" shortly before the crash.

An investigation of the Better Business Bureau of New York City was called for by Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, who contended it is dominated by the stock exchange. The request was taken under advisement.

BRITAIN TO DISCUSS HOOVER ARMS PLAN

Cabinet Believed Inclined More to Proposal by Sir John Simon.

London, June 23 (U.P.).—The American arms reduction plan, welcomed by the press and strongly backed by various national organizations, will be discussed tomorrow by the British cabinet which is expected to declare the British disarmament proposals more feasible.

It was said authoritatively tonight that despite the favorable impression made by President Hoover's proposals, the government leaders consider the plan put forward at Geneva by Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon to be just as important as the American plan and, in some ways, more adequate.

At the same time it was pointed out that the British formula for abolition of costly weapons was—in general terms—much the same as the American proposal. The United States wants fewer warships, while Britain wants smaller warships. Britain feels greater economies would be achieved by reducing tonnage than by reducing numbers.

Simon, who returned hurriedly from Geneva, will present the plan to the government at a special session.

"I have nothing to add at present to what I said at Geneva yesterday," Simon told a questioner in the House of Commons, announcing the plan was receiving immediate consideration by the government. At Geneva, Simon welcomed the plan with certain criticisms and reservations of a mild nature. King George received Simon today and it was believed they discussed the American plan.

The executive committee of the League of Nations Union passed a resolution cordially welcoming the plan and praising President Hoover for "bold statesmanlike initiative," but also favoring reduction of the size of battleships and abolition of submarines.

Comment in the press was favorable with few exceptions. The most striking example was the Star's editorial captioned:

"Thank Heaven for Hoover."

The editorial concluded that "Here is a hand across the sea. For God's sake grasp it."

The Evening Standard said, however, that the President's message to Europe had failed because of the French opposition.

"When France chooses to play the stone-walling game, there is no known method of shifting her," the editorial said in reference to French demands for a security guarantee. "She has quite clearly set her face against the Hoover plan."

Attorneys Will Speak On Evils of Prohibition

"Evils That Have Resulted From Prohibition" will be discussed at a mass meeting tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the Northeast Masonic Temple, Eighth and F streets northeast.

Included among the speakers will be two Washington attorneys, E. P. S. Newman and Richard J. Taggart. The public is invited.

PITTS SAYS RAICHLE CAUSED CONVICTION

thing of the sort. Incidentally, at this point, Pitts said that (referring to Raichle's action in going to the Department of Justice) was why Raichle was on trial now. The inference was that Pitts was testifying against Raichle because of his former attorney's action in going to the Justice Department.

Under questioning by Raichle, Pitts admitted that he had been indicted twice for perjury, once for mail fraud and once for embezzlement, in addition to the two offenses for which he is now serving time—conspiracy to embezzle and criminal contempt of court.

Prodded by Raichle, Pitts frequently admitted yesterday that he had perjured himself in his conspiracy trial. As Raichle read from the transscript of that trial, he repeatedly asked Pitts if his answers were true or false. Not to be outdone, Pitts often parried the question by saying, "You know it was false. You told me to say that."

Indications are that despite the longest court days of the present term of court—from 9 to 5 each day—the trial will last until well into next week. There will be no session today, court having been adjourned over until Monday because Justice F. D. Letts will be busy today hearing lunacy cases, giving sentences for the week and taking arraignments.

WAIT FOR DYNAMITE CAR NETS 2 IN THEFT

Policeman at District Line Nabs Auto With Load of Cigarettes.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Washington police, in wait at the District line on Wisconsin avenue for the maroon coupe reported bound for the Capital with a load of dynamite, yesterday morning arrested two men who later confessed they had robbed a store in Bethesda, Md.

The two men were arrested by Policeman W. V. Chase, of the Eighth Precinct, when he noticed two sacks containing about 50 cartons of cigarettes in the back of their machine. He took them to the police station for questioning. The men first said the robbery was in Rockville, but later admitted it was at the Atlantic & Pacific Tea store in Bethesda, according to the police.

The men were turned over to Montgomery County Policemen Webb Hersperger and Windsor Poole, of the Bethesda substation.

The men gave their names as William F. Nelson, 26 years old, and Joseph Ledford, 18, both of Washington.

County Commissioner Robert D. Hagner yesterday was named commissioner in charge of assessments. He is an auditor and formerly was an assessor, and is thoroughly familiar with the work which he will supervise.

The county commissioners discussed the lack of a law requiring doctors to report treatment of injured persons immediately to the police. The question was presented by Police Commissioner John B. Diamond, who said he had been unable to find any such law on the county books and urged that the situation be corrected.

Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the commissioners, was directed to inquire into the powers of the commissioners in adopting such a law. It was decided to ask State's Attorney Stedman Prescott to a conference on the subject. Prescott is away on his vacation at present but will return in a few days.

A condemnation jury in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville yesterday awarded damages of $3,773.04 to Vincent Marino, Dora Marino and the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. for property belonging to them which is being taken by the county in connection with the construction of the Columbia boulevard to connect Woodside and Sixteenth street.

The county was represented by Capt. Joseph C. Cissel and the property owners by George Horning, jr., of Washington, and the law firm of Peter & Simpson, of Washington.

Montgomery County has more standard 4-H agricultural clubs than any other county in the State, E. G. Jenkins, State Boy Scout leader, informed Albert A. Ady, assistant county farm agent in charge of 4-H work, in a letter received yesterday.

PUBLISHER IS NAMED FOR FINANCE BOARD

my ability," he added. "I have a great deal of confidence in the basic soundness of the plan under which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was created.

"I believe it has already done a great amount of good and in the future can do still more good to stem the tide of the depression."

The publisher was appointed by President Hoover in 1929 as a member of the Public Lands Commission. He is 71 years old and listed as an Independent Republican.

Although President Hoover remained silent as to his intention, there was speculation as to the political effect upon the corporation should a president be appointed from outside of the board of directors.

Should Cowles' name be accepted by the Senate, the board would be comprised of four Republicans: Cowles, Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, chairman; Ogden Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, and Paul Bestor, Farm Loan Commissioner. The Democrats are Jesse Jones, of Dallas; Harvey Couch, of Pine Bluffs, Ark., and Wilson McCarthy, of Salt Lake City.

It was assumed that if the corporation's president should be named from the outside the board, he would be a Republican. The name of Calvin Coolidge has been mentioned for the place, as has that of Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois. Silas Strawn, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who had been mentioned also, told newspapermen today that he was not in line for the job.

Steins and Chimes—They're Both the Same in Chicago

By JOHN J. DALY

THERE can now be no doubt about it, since the verdict was handed down in a Federal court. Beer steins are musical instruments.

The city sealer of Chicago was the witness. He appeared to testify in a suit over $15,000 worth of merchandise seized by Government officials in a raid on a store in the Loop. The prosecution sought to libel the goods for destruction under the Volstead act.

Called upon to explain the use of the steins, the witness told how their owner, a patriotic American, naturalized after forswearing allegiance to the Hohenzollerns, had traveled all over Europe to get these rare works of art.

"That's true," the defendant told the court, "and I get a kick out of them every time I hear those steins played."

"You are sure," the judge interposed, "you are not confusing steins with chimes?"

"S-t-e-i-n-s." The old man spelled it out. "Steins. Like you clink."

* * * *

THE judge was amazed. "Who plays them?" he asked.

"Why, your honor," the defendant replied, "any good musician can play those steins."

"Thats' a new one on me," the judge confessed.

"You've heard of the Stein Song, haven't you, judge?" he was asked by the counsel for the defense.

"Yes, but——"

"And you've heard of a Steinway?"

"Yes, but——"

"Well," invited the defendant, thus incurring the wrath of the court, "come up to the house some night——"

* * * *

THE judge called for order and handed the case to the jury.

After a short deliberation, twelve good men and true decided that beer steins, in this case, were musical instruments, and let it go at that.

The defendant, freed, invited the jury to his home to hear the stein songs, one old familiar tune ringing out, above them all:

"For it's always fair weather,
When stein players get together,
With the steins on the table,
And a good song ringing clear!"

Of course, it had to happen in Chicago—and perhaps for the next century that still will be the only city in all America where beer steins are classed, legally, as musical instruments.

$2,300,000,000 RELIEF MEASURE GIVEN APPROVAL BY SENATE

of depression," but announced he would vote for it, for the limited benefit it provided.

Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, also said the bill was "wholly inadequate," but told the Senate he would vote for it because of the provision for emergency loans to States and the public works feature.

Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, announced he would vote against the measure and suggested that provision be made for "dog houses for fox hunters," which he contended would be as justifiable as some of the other provisions.

A last-minute effort by Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, to make the bill less objectionable to the administration by giving the President discretion to carry out the bond issue program was rejected, 50 to 20.

House in Recess.

The House was in recess waiting for the Senate to act on the relief bill. It probably will agree to the conference today and the big battle for a compromise will get under way.

No sooner had the bill been passed than Senator Moses, remarking that the five-minute limitation of debate no longer applied, raked the measure with criticism.

Moses, regarded as an administration spokesman, asserted Nation-wide demand exists for balancing the budget. "If the Senate insists on unbalancing the budget in the amount here proposed," he added, "we must be prepared to take the consequences."

He directed his fire particularly at the $500,000,000 bond issue for public works, contending such an issue would drive down the price of all Government securities.

Speaker Garner, who was on the Senate floor when the bill passed, and stayed to hear Senator Moses' criticism of it, told newspapermen later that House conferees on the measure would be appointed today.

"And they'll go right to work, too," he said.

Attacked by Moses.

Moses charged the bill started the Government down "a dangerous path" in its financing and provided a "dishonest policy" under which expenditures would be made out of a special fund so as not to affect the regular budget.

The unemployment relief achieved, Moses said, "is not in any way commensurate with the sacrifices."

Referring to public works items amounting to $307,000,000, he said they would provide direct employment during the next fiscal year for only 85,350 men or, roughly, one in every 100 of the country's jobless.

Senator Oddie (Republican), Nevada, contended Moses' information "is utterly erroneous" and that he had way underestimated the number of men who would be employed.

"Whoever gave him that information didn't know what they were talking about," he added.

Jobless Girl Is Found Unconscious From Gas

A 19-year-old girl, who was found unconscious from gas fumes yesterday morning in the kitchen of her home at 1229 Oates street northeast, was reported to be improving last night at Casualty Hospital where she was taken for treatment.

Rosalie Noonan was discovered unconscious on the floor with all of the jets on a gas stove turned on, by her sister, Bertha, who told police she was awakened by the odor of gas.

Police were told Rosalie had been despondent because of sickness of her mother and her own inability to find work.

District Fund Report Is Presented in Senate

The District appropriations conference report, carrying a Federal lump sum contribution toward local needs of $7,775,000, yesterday was formally presented in the Senate by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee.

Chairman Clarence Cannon, of the House District appropriations subcommittee, who Wednesday left for the Democratic convention, indicated the measure may not be reported in the House until his return, unless adjournment is first voted.

Suspect in Auto Holdup Is Held for Grand Jury

Charged with robbery, Arthur G. Brock, of Cherrydale, Va., yesterday was ordered held for the action of the grand jury under a bond of $15,000 when he was given a preliminary hearing in Police Court before Judge John P. McMahon.

The charge against Brock is that he jumped into an automobile driven by Louis F. Lucas, 415 Oglethorp street northwest, when Lucas stopped for a traffic light on Wisconsin avenue, shoved a gun at him and forced the driver to go to a spot several blocks away. There he is alleged to have robbed Lucas of $5 and the car.

NEW GAS EXPLOSION OCCURS AT POTOMAC

No One Is Injured; Victims of Wednesday's Blast to Be Buried Tomorrow.

Residents of the vicinity of Potomac, Md., were startled last night by another explosion on the gas transmission line near Potomac where two man were killed and a third seriously injured Wednesday by an explosion of gas fumes from a leak. County police were called but could find no injured persons and it is not believed there were any casualties. The gas was cut off at a nearby valve by John Barrett, foreman of the line crew.

Funeral services for the two victims of the gas line explosion Wednesday will be held tomorrow at St. Mary's Catholic Church, at Rockville, Md.

Requiem mass for John Esputa, 27, an employe of the Columbia Gas Construction Co., will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the church. The Rev. Charles R. O'Hara will officiate. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. The body will remain at the Colonial Funeral Home in Rockville until the funeral.

Funeral arrangements for Charles Edward Dove, 17, have not been completed, but will be held tomorrow morning at the church. The body is at the funeral home of Warner E. Pumphrey, at Rockville.

Both men died at Georgetown Hospital Wednesday night, where they were taken after the explosion by the Rockville Rescue Squad. The condition of William Nicholson, 18, also burned in the blast, was reported improved yesterday by the hospital.

Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley, of the Montgomery County police, announced yesterday that no inquest would be held, as the cause of death was well established. Death certificates for the two who died were signed by Georgetown Hospital staff physicians.

Horde of Grasshoppers Halts Passenger Train

Winnipeg, Manitoba, June 23 (A.P.).—A swarm of grasshoppers so thick that they delayed a passenger train was reported today from southwest Manitoba.

West of the Deloraine, miles of rail were covered with the grasshoppers, inches deep. The train crew, lacking sand to throw on the rails, was forced to proceed at a snail's pace for 20 miles.

The Department of Agriculture said serious crop damage probably would result.

Austria Suspends Payment on Debt

Action Follows Failure to Negotiate Loan; Outcome at Lausanne Awaited.

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 23 (A.P.).—Chancellor Engelburg Dolfuss of Austria announced tonight that his government had declared a suspension of service on the Austrian foreign debt. It will become effective tomorrow. The action was taken because Austria failed to negotiate a loan.

Vienna, June 23 (A.P.).—A government spokesman said tonight that Chancellor Dolfuss' announcement at Lausanne that Austria had suspended service on its foreign debt referred to the statement last night that the Austrian National Bank was suspending for the time being the allocation of foreign exchange for interest payments.

The action temporarily suspends interest payments in foreign currencies pending the outcome of negotiations at Lausanne, the spokesman said, but no formal moratorium was declared.

Broker Dies of Burns After Rift With Wife

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Raymond H. Allen, broker and clubman, died today of scalds received in the bathroom at the home of a friend with whom he had gone to spend the night, after publicly announcing a rift in his marital affairs.

Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, said Allen apparently received fatal burns when he seized a faucet to pull himself out of a bathtub and accidentally turned a stream of scalding water on himself. He fell into the tub while fully clothed. Dr. Norris made the report after an autopsy, following upon questioning of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Van Riper, in whose apartment in Fifth avenue the accident occurred at midnight last night.

SLUMP RESOLUTION DIVIDES ROTARIANS

Effort to "Influence" Course of Nations Questioned; Directors Named.

Seattle, Wash., June 23 (A.P.).—A division of opinion over a proposed resolution calling upon Rotarians to study the present economic crisis with a view to influencing a solution resulted in withdrawal of the resolution for revision at the Rotary international convention today.

The resolutions committee was ordered to submit a substitute tomorrow. Disagreement arose as to whether the convention should go on record as encouraging Rotarians to "influence the course of governments" in seeking economic readjustments.

The election of five directors from the United States was announced. These, with the votes given them, are Allan S. Bagg, of Pittsfield, Mass., 840; J. Murray Hill, of Bowling Green, Ky., 772; Carl E. Steeb, of Columbus, Ohio, 697; Dr. Harry C. Brown, of Denver, Colo., 682, and Mayor David J. Reese, of Ventura, Calif., 645.

Three candidates were defeated—Henry G. Bennett, of Stillwater, Okla., 563 votes; John E. Carlson, of Kansas City, 479, and Morgan Richards, of Selma, Ala., 342.

The retiring board of directors announced the appointment of five overseas directors—Fred Birks, of Sydney, Australia; Louis Machado, of Havana, Cuba; Ernesto Aguilar, of Mexico City; Biagio Borriello, of Naples, Italy, and Kurt Blafrage, of Sweden.

The convention postponed action on the proposal to permit additional clubs in large cities with well-defined trade areas, instructing the board of directors to study the matter and report to the session next year.

Plans to Avoid New Postal Rates Stir U. S. Opposition

Government Will Insist on Right to Letter-Carrying Monopoly by Prosecuting Illegal Delivering of Bills by Private Messengers.

(Associated Press.)

Alert to plans for avoiding new high postage rates, the Government is going to insist on its right to the monopoly of carrying letters.

The increase in postage rates from 2 to 3 cents, effective July 6, has caused public utility companies and other organizations using the mails to distribute monthly bills to consider other means. In some cities use of men now unemployed has been suggested.

The increased postage and the tax on bank checks, with which many bills are paid, are said by business men to involve a contribution of 11 cents on each bill paid by mail with a check. At that rate every 100,000 bills would mean a contribution of $11,000 to the Government. Hiring private carriers at modest wages would save money for both the companies and their customers, they say.

The Postoffice Department, however, points out that postal laws do not permit anyone to enter into competition with the postal service in carrying letters. There is no objection to a company using its own employes for deliveries, but two or more companies will not be allowed to use the same employe, nor hire a messenger or other delivery service to deliver their bills.

The law provides a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than six months, or both, for using such means. The person delivering bills for more than one company would be liable to a fine of not more than $50 for each letter.

W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, has directed all postmasters to report promptly any cases coming to their attention. He told postmasters numerous reports had been received that on account of the postage increase individuals and companies were planning to make deliveries, under contract or on a piece-work basis.

This will be prevented wherever possible.

Four More Killed In German Rioting

Policeman, 2 Communists and Nazi Are Victims in Clashes.

Berlin, June 23 (A.P.).—Embittered clashes between Adolf Hitler's National Socialists and Communists raging throughout the nation took a toll of four dead today, making a total of ten persons killed since the last week-end.

Fatal clashes occurred at Dortmund, where a National Socialist was killed, and at Duisburg and Strassfurt, where two Communists died. A policeman died in Hamburg from injuries received in fighting earlier this week.

Joseph Goebbels, a chief lieutenant of Hitler, vehemently attacked the government of Chancellor Franz von Papen at a great mass meeting in Berlin's sports palace. He warned that unless the police checked the Communists, "we will give the command to clear the streets ourselves."

DIARY OF HAUSNER TO FINANCE FLIGHT

Flier to Sell His Notes and Try Again; Says 15 Ships Passed Him By.

Miami, Fla., June 23 (A.P.).—A brine-stained diary—written during the eight days he tossed perilously on the floating plane that failed him in flying toward Poland—is the potential nest-egg for Stanley Hausner's next attempt to span the Atlantic by air.

Rested after his near-tragic experience in the Atlantic and after the clamor of his welcome and the reunion with wife here last night, Hausner told today of writting the diary and of his hopes to sell it for publication. He refused, however, to make public the thoughts he wrote while drifting.

When airplane trouble forced him to descend into the ocean 600 miles off Portugal June 4, Hausner had his diary in the pocket of his coat.

"Aside from watching for steamers to pick me up—and I saw fifteen before I found one that sighed me—there was little else for me to do but write in the diary," the Polish-American motion picture machine operator related.

Hausner and his wife, who flew here from Newark to welcome him, rested today after the midnight reception accorded him last night.

To his disappointment, he learned that photographs taken by officers of the Circle Shell at the time of his rescue were made too late in the evening to register details of the feat.

The flier slept late this morning and went with friends on a swimming party this afternoon. He spent some time answering mail and telegrams that awaited his arrival.

America Shows One Auto For Every 4.77 Persons

U. S. Has Nearly Three Times as Many Motor Vehicles as Rest of World Combined; Decline in Registration Is Reported.

(Associated Press.)

There's one automobile registered for every 4.77 persons in the United States.

And, in the whole world, there's a car for every 56.5 persons.

Or, looking at the motoring picture from the point of view of representative cities, Detroit has a car for every four inhabitants, Chicago's ratio is one to seven, New York's is one to nine, while Berlin has 61 persons for every car, Amsterdam has 50, and there's only one motor vehicle—a truck, at that—for the whole of Spitzbergen.

These are aspects of a world census of the registration of motor vehicles, as of January 1, 1932, just completed by the automotive division of the Department of Commerce.

World registration dropped to 35,263,297 units, a decline of 1.5 per cent from the preceding census figure. An increase of nearly 2 per cent in automobiles owned in foreign countries failed to offset a decrease of 2.8 per cent in registration in the United States.

The United States, nevertheless, had on its roll nearly three times as many motor vehicles as the rest of the world combined.

A sidelight of the census was a differentiation of "possession" and "ownership," the survey of 163 nations, possessions, and dependencies showing that the economic slump has brought a withdrawal of many cars from operation.

In Germany, it was estimated, 50,900 cars and 10,500 trucks have been withdrawn from circulation; in Brazil, about 20 per cent of the automobiles are estimated to be inactive, while official figures for New Zealand show 22,162 cars, 187 buses and 7,435 trucks are "dormant" although registered.

It was found that 86.3 per cent of all automobiles were of American origin or type, a smaller share for the United States than the previous census, which credited 87.8 per cent to America.

THE PORK-BARREL BILL.

The Senate has passed a bill for unemployment relief which contains good and bad features. This bill will go up against the Garner pork-barrel bill in conference. Out of the conference may come a measure which can not be approved by President Hoover. An immediate veto by him might result in a recasting of the bill, or it might lead to long and angry debate, delaying the adjournment of Congress. It is possible that an effort will be made to adjourn immediately after the bill has been sent to the President, so that, if he should veto it, he could be accused of heartless disregard of the plight of the unemployed.

The unacceptable portion of this bill is the pork-barrel feature. It matters little whether the pork be the Garner brand or the Wagner brand, or whether the public will be asked to finance this pork by paying an extra gasoline tax or by taxes to extinguish a huge bond issue. The President can not be expected to approve a bill to provide pork for legislators at public expense, even if the bill contained desirable provisions for meeting the unemployment situation.

This plan to obtain political and sectional advantages under the guise of relieving unemployment is such an atrocious misuse of the legislative power that President Hoover would have no difficulty in making the facts clear to the people. Of what avail was the struggle to balance the budget, if it is upset by a gigantic bond issue to be squandered for pork? The "public works" program of both the House and Senate bills is worthless as a means of relieving unemployment, but it is supposed to be invaluable to senators and representatives who succeed in diverting public money to their States and districts. In reality this scheme for winning political capital at public expense would probably be worth very little to the legislators concerned, because more than one hard-pressed community has already repudiated the plan to foist upon them extravagant and unnecessary public buildings. They want economy, not extravagance; and they detect the odor of pork as plainly as it is detected in Washington.

The Constitution provides the means whereby the public can be protected against a Congress that runs amuck in an attempt to misuse or squander tax money. This protection can be given by a fearless and conscientious President. He can call a halt and compel reconsideration, while in the meantime sounding a warning that can be heard by every citizen. Public opinion can then reinforce him, and command Congress to desist.

With the elimination of the pork-barrel feature of the unemployment relief bill the President could approve it, on account of the urgent necessity for taking extraordinary measures to cope with the situation. Congress can eliminate the pork now, in conference, or it can eliminate it after a veto. It is inconceivable that President Hoover will approve a bill containing $500,000,000 or more of pork, and then join with Congress in insisting that the bill is genuinely intended to promote economy and relieve unemployment.

HOMES OF STEEL.

Hard times nearly always sow the seeds of industrial reorganization. Readjustments become necessary. New opportunities are opened. Inventors and manufacturers are pressed to change their plans and processes to meet new conditions. People are less afraid of innovations. Financial difficulties force them to accept ideas and things that might not be acceptable in times of high prosperity.

It is not surprising, therefore, to find revolutionary movements under way in some of the greatest industries. The home building industry is a notable example. Widespread efforts are being made to create houses that will be suitable for the families of working men with low incomes, as well as to facilitate the purchase of such homes. Millions of families in the United States are seeking a way out of the dilemma caused by high rents. Projects to put working men in homes of their own at greatly reduced prices may be an important factor in reviving employment and business.

The latest development in this campaign for cheaper homes is the marketing of steel houses at a cost of about $4,000, including the land on which they are built, to be paid at the rate of $30 per month. It is reported that one-story homes of steel, containing five or six rooms, can be set up and taken down in four days. They have a turn-in value and can be exchanged for more pretentious quarters at the will of the owner. Houses of this type are flat-roofed. They have an abundance of windows, as well as electric refrigeration, modern heating and plumbing equipment.

Apparently this type of house is built for 100 per cent utility, with little attention to beauty. This is a mistake. But the steel house industry is still in its infancy. If the public responds to this new idea, rapid improvement in the types of steel houses offered the public could be anticipated. The manufacturers of cheap houses doubtless expect to compromise between attractiveness and utility. If these enterprises can once demonstrate that suitable homes can be turned out by the mass-production method, the addition of frills to suit the public taste ought not to be difficult or costly.

DEMOCRATS AT CHICAGO.

As the Democratic hosts gather in Chicago the atmosphere thickens instead of becoming clearer. Gov. Roosevelt appears in a double role—as the outstanding candidate and as the chief target. Favorite sons are playing a silent and waiting game, avoiding commitments and hoping that a deadlock will defeat the principal contenders and compel the convention to nominate a second choice.

Gov. Smith is on the ground early. He is now fighting for himself, having lost valuable time in which he might have won some delegations. Chairman Raskob's national committee machine is at work in Gov. Smith's behalf.

The pronounced wetward movement in the party favors Gov. Smith. He was a wet on the deadly firing-line of 1928. Many Democrats believe that he was a martyr to the wet cause and is now entitled to the support of newly converted wets, of whom there are supposed to be millions. The radical wets, who demand "naked repeal," are delighted with Gov. Smith's unequivocal stand for repeal. If the convention should ride roughshod over the drys Gov. Smith's roster of delegates might grow with astounding rapidity.

Gov. Roosevelt's managers are taking the aggressive. They insist that with a majority in sight they have a right to name the permanent chairman, dominate the resolutions committee, and if necessary to abolish the two-thirds rule. The selection of former Senator Hitchcock as chairman of the resolutions committee may foreshadow a struggle over the wet and dry plank, as he is said to favor submission of a repeal amendment without committing the party or its candidates to repeal. The temper of the convention may be strongly against such a plank. Gov. Smith's supporters may be expected to oppose it, and no doubt they will be vociferously encouraged by the gallery. It is supposed that the "administration forces" prevented the Republican convention from adopting an outright repeal plank, and if this be true there is some reason to expect the Democratic convention to deal ruthlessly with the drys, notwithstanding the protests of the dry South, for there is no administration influence to restrain the extremists.

The struggle between Roosevelt and the "stop Roosevelt" element is expected to begin with the selection of a permanent chairman. Jouett Shouse was chosen for this place by the committee on arrangements, without public objection from the Roosevelt managers; but now these managers are supporting Senator Walsh of Montana for the chairmanship. If the dispute should reach the voting stage the Roosevelt forces will probably win. The convention from that moment would command greater public respect, and the proceedings would take on the dignity that should mark a convocation engaged, as it believes, in the selection of the next President of the United States.

PICTURES WITH DEPTH.

Recent announcements have encouraged the belief that three-dimension pictures would soon be making their appearance upon the regular movie screen. This hope of seeing the life-like presentation of stereopticon views in motion is quite premature. Three-dimension motion pictures have been produced in the Bell Telephone laboratories, the work of Dr. Herbert E. Ives. When the announcement of the discovery was made a short time ago by Dr. Ives, before a meeting of the National Academy of Science here, cinema enthusiasts expected shortly to have this innovation introduced in their favorite theaters. This possibility is as yet far distant, Dr. Ives has explained, by showing the difficulties that stand in the way of its development.

Human eyes are able to perceive the third dimensional quality only because there are two of them. Each eye gets the visual image from a slightly different angle. This slight difference is interpreted by the brain as depth. Were men provided with only one eye all they perceive would appear flat. Closing one eye will not show this in its true significance, for memory and knowledge are too strong to eradicate the two-eye picture, though it is obvious that a man would not see half as well with one eye as with two.

To give depth to a picture, therefore, two images taken at a slightly different angle, each intended for a separate eye, must be shown. This effect was secured long ago with the old-fashioned parlor stereoscope. To produce this effect for motion pictures Dr. Ives uses a solid revolving wheel in place of film. As two images must be extended only materials which could not move or slip can be used, otherwise the picture might become distorted or blurred. The screen is made of vertical celluloid rods, about a quarter of an inch thick, which refract narrow parallel beams of light toward the observer, thereby presenting two separate pictures at different angles.

The difficulty with such production in a theater is that the spectators do not all sit in a straight line, but are seated over an angle of about 60 degrees. Not two but dozens of images would have to be reflected from the different angles of the ridges on the screen to make the picture a success. This would entail photographing the original scene from so many cameras that the expense would be greatly increased, even if it were possible. Again the revolving wheel on which the pictures are carried is cumbersome and expensive, and the picture lasts at most only a couple of seconds before it repeats. The three-dimensional film must, therefore, be regarded as an interesting development which is, as yet, suited only to the laboratory.

GARNER'S "ECONOMY" STAND.

Speaker Garner's sudden espousal of the wet cause a few days ago obscured a very interesting feature of the platform on which he seeks the Democratic presidential nomination. In the body of his statement the Speaker made an emphatic demand for economy. The exact words of his platform are:

> The cost of government — city, county, State and national—can, and should be, reduced, not less than one-third.

In reality this is the sensational part of Speaker Garner's platform. When politicians are falling over each other in their frantic dash for the anti-prohibition pool, the splash created by a Democratic candidate for the Presidency is not especially important. But when the Speaker of the House comes out for a program that would mean the abolition of a considerable part of the Government, it is worthy of note.

Mr. Garner would reduce expenditures by at least one-third. That would mean trimming about $1,371,000,000 from the estimated budget for 1933. In other words, he would reduce the total budget to about $2,742,000,000. But Speaker Garner has already committed himself and the House of Representatives to a pork-barrel relief measure that calls for expenditure of $2,300,000,000 in excess of the budget. Of course, this would not all come directly out of the Federal Treasury. But the bill would authorize the construction of postoffices and other public works at a cost of $1,120,000,000, to be financed by the issuance of bonds. That sum certainly would be included within the costs of government, and therefore, would have to be deducted from the two-thirds of the budget which would remain after the Garner slice of one-third had been removed. This would leave $1,622,000,000 for other Federal expenditures.

The Government now spends $1,000,000,000 on war veterans. The House stubbornly refused to reduce that outlay, but passed a pension bill for widows, orphans, fathers and mothers of veterans, involving further enormous expenditures. When interest on the national debt is added to the expense of maintaining ex-soldiers, there is virtually nothing left in the Garner budget to run the Government.

Does Speaker Garner wish the country to understand that he favors abolition of the Army and Navy, the State Department, the Treasury, Congress and all other branches of the Government? He regards his pork-barrel measure as absolutely necessary to the salvation of the country. His statement indicates that he is unwilling to give up this gigantic squandering project, even while drastically reducing other cost of the Government.

Obviously, the Speaker's talk of reducing governmental expenditures while he is trying to foist upon taxpayers an outrageous new debt for unnecessary projects is nothing but campaign piffle. His scheme is put forward to justify his claims for consideration as the future President of the United States. If there is any humor left in the Democratic party as the zero hour approaches, it ought not to be wasted on anything less than the Garner "economy" platform.

PHILIPPINE CORDAGE

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The cordage manufacturers of America are the most influential of all the commercial interests backing the Hawes-Cutting bill. The farm organizations are in fact against the bill, believing that it does not keep out certain Philippine products effectively.

The case of the cordage industry is this: From the Philippines they import hemp, which they make into rope. But two companies in the islands are making rope themselves and exporting it to the United States. The value of their exports is about $700,000 annually.

It is claimed the Philippine rope makers undersell their competitors in America and otherwise demoralize the market. They do not belong to the cordage institute, which must be a legally sacrosanct trade institution, because it has not been haled before the Federal Trade Commission.

The Hawes-Cutting bill limits the amount of Philippine rope that can be imported duty free. The cordage institute spokesman is careful to say that "the cordage industry has not taken a position for or against Philippine independence." However, the bill is described as an independence measure.

This case of the cordage touches the Philippine-American economic relationship in a fundamental manner. There is no doubt that the Philippine product competes with the American product in this particular instance. The American cordage industry may well view the potentiality of Philippine competition with alarm. But the challenge is primarily to the Philippines. Are they going to export their raw material to America as well as the manufacture thereof? The answer should be an emphatic negative.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

If I remember rightly, anyone a cheer could raise,
By speaking with affection of the vanished good old days.
In the times when we'd turned lavish ere the market fell so low,
We boasted rather proudly of the joys we used to know,
And we talked our boyhood over, and we wondered if again
We'd ever know the gladness and the thrill of 'way back then.

Those were days when boys sold papers and ran errands for a dime,
When a dollar was a fortune and to waste one seemed a crime;
Those were days we worked all summer for a bicycle or gun,
But all that we remembered of our hardships was the fun.
We had come to linen collars, motor cars and foolish ways,
And seemed anxious that our children shouldn't know those "good old days."

Now we're wailing in our anguish that the good old days are gone,
There are mighty tasks before us and some mightier following on.
Now our boys are running errands for their nickels and their dimes,
And a dollar seems important in these strange, eventful times.
Hearts and minds by care are sobered, though the pain has been severe.
For our children, let's remember, that those "good old days" are here.

If the Boy Must Tend Bar, Whose Is the Fault if He Learns to Drink?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE public makes its decision without hearing the evidence for the defense.

Consider, for example, the case of Robert Strong, war veteran. The name alone is fictitious.

The public knows him only as a pension grafter.

He served six months in France before the armistice; never once approached the danger zone; received no hurt in line of duty.

The disability that made him a pensioner was the result of a "social disease." And when the truth became known, the upright and the just were filled with righteous wrath because their tax money was used to reward sin.

Now hear the other side of the story.

Robert Strong was a country boy. The village in which he lived was his heritage and his destiny. He absorbed its standards as naturally as he breathed its air.

At the age of 17 he graduated from high school and settled down to work in his father's lumber yard. The village took it for granted that the business some day would be his.

People called him a "good boy," but nobody considered him effeminate. He went to Sunday school and church every Sunday—as other youngsters of the village did. He had learned no vices. The girl he intended to marry had been his sweetheart since childhood.

Left alone, he would have ended his days with little knowledge of the world. He would have lived as his father did before him—unsophisticated, industrious, frugal, contented, honorable and without experience of the world's wickedness.

The draft made him a soldier—perhaps the greenest one in khaki. He was one of that considerable number classified by an astonished examining officer as "male virgins."

He heard much talk of vices. Doubtless he was made ashamed of his inexperience. At any rate, he concealed his innocence and went the way of soldiers the world over.

In France he contracted and in shame concealed the disease that made him a surgical case and a physical wreck.

His own fault? Yes; but no fault of his took him to France. The war broke him.

Is a crippled soldier less a victim of war because his own folly invited the bullet that struck him?

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

No Balanced Budget Yet.

Topeka Capital.

Chicago for the time being draws the eyes of the country from Congress, in its final efforts to balance the Federal budget. It is far from being balanced, as the President has been insistent in reminding the House and Senate. The tax bill did not do it. The Senate has made some progress backward by eliminating various reductions in the budget, in one day cutting out some 90 millions of the proposed savings itemized in its bill drafted to reduce Federal expenses 238 million dollars. The full latter figure is no more than sufficient to make the outgo balance with the anticipated revenues from the tax bill. This is at least as well known to Congress as to the country.

Unless Congress stiffens its backbone the budget will not be balanced even on paper.

Unsound Objection.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Strangely enough, opposition to the Vice President seemed to be crystallized in the one objection—his age. Not a very sound objection in this day, when we have not outlived the memory of Gladstone, who remained a striking world figure at 83, or of Bismarck, who was at the zenith of his powers when the last of the Hohenzollerns removed him from the chancellorship at the age of 75; and there were Clemenceau and Giolitti.

In our own political story we find that Thurman at the age of 75 was elected by the Democrats as Vice President on the ticket with Cleveland. Henry Gassaway Davis was Parker's running mate in 1904 at the age of 81, and lived eight years longer. Oliver Wendell Holmes was no youngling on the Supreme Bench through strenuous years.

Hindenburg continues to be a lusty factor in human affairs, though rubbing shoulders with the eighties; and there is Uncle Andy Mellon, young-old, at the Court of St. James, rather creditably looking after the interests of the United States.

Favoritism Rejected.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Although the American people are deeply sympathetic with the plight of many former service men, they can not indorse a reckless subsidy which would disturb gravely the fiscal affairs of the Nation. Neither could the Senate honestly give in to the mob psychology of the veterans' demand, disregarding the interests of the millions of citizens who can not run to Washington to urge their needs upon the legislators.

Together with an adequate revenue and further economies in government, the rejection of the bonus demand should go far to improve the business sentiment of the country. We know now that we are not to be the victims of an unsound piece of favoritism, dangerous to the economic life of the country and destructive of the representative quality of our Government. Knowing that, we can face the future with more assurance.

Says Both Sides Won.

Boston Transcript.

Wets and drys alike won victories in the Republican national convention, although not in the sense of a harmonious union upon a program relative to the eighteenth amendment, one satisfactory to both sides and promising to be so received by the people. The wets triumphed mightily in forcing an unwilling administration to concede that some change in the application of constitutional prohibition is imperatively demanded by the voters and that such States as may so vote shall be permitted to take themselves out from under the amendment. The drys, however, won the greater meed of success in securing the adoption of the "administration" plank, which would perpetuate Federal control of the liquor traffic even in States which hereafter may vote wet, that would leave the issue the football of future Congresses, which may change their minds with each succeeding election, and in recording the Republican party as wholly distrustful of State legislatures which the people hereafter may elect.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Trained Animals Cruelly Treated, Says Washington Humane Society Representative.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Humanity in general and children in particular, have always enjoyed different forms of amusement. Of these the trained-animal act has generally been the favorite of the children, and grown-ups also are, in a measure, much amused by the tricks that animals are required to perform before the footlights.

There is no cruelty displayed. The animals perform with meticulous care their proper parts. They appear to be quite happy in their performances. All is bright and cheerful. Our interest in these performances is engendered by the wonder that dumb animals can be taught to do the almost human things they do. It appears a pretty sight to see dogs waltzing unnaturally on their hind legs, cats walking the tight rope and horses keeping time to music. Nothing indicates any cruelty behind it all. The animals appear to be well and kindly treated by their masters.

Did it ever occur to you that the marvelous performances of these defenseless animals are the result of a long period of careful instruction filled with fiendish cruelty? That the things they are required to do are absolutely unnatural to them and that they can only be persuaded to perform them through the continued application of the lash for a long period of time? These animals are generally whipped and tortured by their masters until their spirits are broken and they will gladly do whatever they are asked to do rather than suffer the punishment they know is coming if they rebel.

People of humane tendencies should do all they can do to prevent trained-animal acts. Children should be taught that while these acts are apparently harmless, they are the results of long and cruel training for each animal concerned. There has been but little happiness and much misery in their training.

Traffic Crashes at Union Station—No Signal Lights at Congested Crescent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Accidents continue to be the order of the day in the vicinity of the Union Station. Residents of that section of the city have an interminable pageant of automobile crashes for their entertainment. They would appreciate being relieved of the privilege.

The traffic authorities say that they are making a study of the problem, but they seem to be tardy in coming to the obvious conclusion that a system of signal lights is needed along the streets leading into the station crescent and the streets running east and west across these arteries of travel.

The matter has been appealed to all the officials concerned, but nothing to date has been done about it.

I wish the newspapers would agitate the subject. They are about the only friends ordinary people have in cases of this kind.

Fate of Stalwart Indians Cited as Proof of Disgenic Influence of Liquor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When college and university presidents and great philanthropists call for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, I wonder if they have forgotten the disgenic influence of liquor. How can men who spend their energies in educational and charitable labors be so blind to the antisocial effect of booze?

For example, here is Senator Bingham, a scholar, a student of history. A few years ago he was celebrated for his explorations in South America. I wish Mr. Bingham would recall to mind a fact which he once knew full well. Mention to him the once stalwart Araucanian Indians of Chile. For 300 years they defied the Spanish and Chilean conquerors. What brought them to defeat in the end? Their human foes? Mr. Bingham can answer. Read Harriet Chalmers Adams' comment in the National Geographic Magazine for September, 1922: "It was left to old John Barleycorn at last to batter down their splendid resistance."

Prohibition may not be perfect, but there is no sense in jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. What has been harmful to other peoples may hurt Americans. Let us spend our resources if need be in the correction of current evils rather than in propaganda for a reversion to the acknowledged evils of the past.

Municipal Center Plan Should Be Approved by Congress, Says Mr. Kennedy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I understand that the Senate yesterday failed to approve the plan to start work immediately on the Municipal Center. Such neglect, in my opinion, is a great mistake. The House should take steps to correct it.

The Municipal Center project has already been too long delayed. The building is needed. Any one who is at all familiar with conditions in the Municipal Court, the Traffic Court, the Metropolitan Police Headquarters, the Recorder's office, &c., knows that extra expense and waste are the fruits of present arrangements.

Congress ought not to default in this instance. Before adjournment the matter should be dealt with. Approval of the plan is the logical step.

U. S. STILL OPPOSED TO SECURITY PACTS

Position Will Not Change in Spite of French Views on Arms Slash.

(Associated Press.)

Watching intently the reaction of France to President Hoover's far-flung arms slash proposal, high Washington officials yesterday remained publicly silent but privately optimistic over the plan's ultimate destiny.

As reports continued to reiterate French demands for a security pact, however, word was passed through highly authoritative channels that the United States would not, under any conditions, become a party to such an agreement.

It was stated that both President Hoover and Secretary Stimson considered the proposal for a one-third cut in armaments, forwarded to Geneva Wednesday contained items more favorable to French security than any other offer thus far made.

Hold Favor Gaining.

The Secretary of State told newspapermen he believed the French government was "warming up to" the Hoover suggestions. Little worry was expressed in other quarters over the attitude of Great Britain, Germany and Italy, but the attitude of Japan was watched closely.

Both the President and Stimson employed the transatlantic telephone during the day to keep in touch with developments abroad. Mr. Hoover talked directly with Hugh Gibson, an American delegate at Geneva, and voluminous cabled reports supplemented the oral interchanges.

The Chief Executive menawhile received scores of congratulations upon his second major move within little more than a year to aid world recovery. Many of the messages he read personally.

Considerable note was taken by officials of the unfavorable reception given the Hoover plan by the French press.

Secretary Stimson told newspapermen the attitude of French correspondents occasioned little surprise as they had objected previously to some of the suggested items, even before the President's consolidated proposal was sent to Geneva.

One high official, stating unequivocally that the United States would not depart from its policy of remaining aloof from foreign security pacts or agreements, whatever the French attitude, asserted Mr. Hoover had given thought to the security demands of France in drawing up his plan.

Favorable to France.

It was pointed out that the Chief Executive's proposal for the abolition of large mobile guns and tanks, but with the retention of guns of whatever size desired in frontier fortresses, was an item highly favorable to France.

Military authorities here were said to have passed on to their superiors the belief that it would be impossible to invade France, provided long range mobile guns and all bombing planes were abolished, coupled with a prohibition of all bombardment from the air.

In the same quarter it was said the President considered the proposal to reduce the fleets of the world by one-third another factor favorable to France, since the war strength of other nations would be reduced in actual tonnage more than that of France under the naval slash, even though the present relativity was maintained.

ECONOMY NEED AIDS ARMS CUT CHANCES

over the fate of their increased naval claims which were to be heard and perhaps acted on, in 1936. The present Hoover proposal, if adopted, would render the 1936 conference unnecessary, according to the Japanese fears and tend to postpone for another indefinite term the possibility of giving audible relief to the naval aspirations of Japan.

The objections to the plan are therefore mainly to be expected from the French and from the Japanese.

However, the most important ally for the United State in favor of ultimate acceptance of the Hoover arms plan is the necessity for economy all over the world.

Japan has been in a period of depression ever since the silk market collapsed eight years ago. Since then the island kingdom has suffered a succession of political and economic reverses which make economic retrenchment an absolute necessity if the present order is to remain in Japan.

The adoption of the Hoover arms plan by Japan would make a very definite improvement in Japanese budgetary conditions. The savings to the United States are estimated at $200,000,000 annually and the economy to Japan would be proportionately great.

For the same reason, the opposition from France is expected to be a great deal weaker than had been at first feared. France expected to hold out for some additional compensations if she accepts the President's proposals in lieu of her demand for security and security pacts.

But in the case of France again the economic factor will in all probability play the strongest factor in acceptance of the Hoover proposal.

The possibility of holding another conference in 1936 is not ruled out by the Hoover proposal, since no specific extent of time was expressed in the proposition. The usual period of validity for such a treaty as would legalize the President's proposals is about ten years.

However, if Japan or any other country insists on revision of the quotas, it would be very possible to still accept the Hoover plan and specify in it that it be valid for a certain number of years, which would enable the countries to meet again in less than a decade, to review the necessity for changes in the quotas.

GENEVA SIDETRACKS PLAN TEMPORARILY

American Arms Delegates Disgruntled; French View Is Discussed.

Geneva, June 23 (A.P.).—American disarmament conference delegates were somewhat disgruntled today when President Hoover's proposal for slashing the world's arms approximately one-third were temporarily sidetracked.

Instead of taking up the Hoover plan at private discussions being held by the British, French and American representatives, the conferees talked about France's suggestion for reducing arms by cutting budget appropriations.

Blocked in this respect, the Americans indicated their determination to bring about full consideration of the Hoover program by the general conference if not in the informal three-power discussions.

Meanwhile, in informed French quarters it was said the Paris government might be satisfied in its demands for security if the United States Congress would adopt Senator Claude A. Swanson's plan to authorize the President to consult the interested powers in case of an international emergency threatening war.

This comment was made in connection with news dispatches from Washington quoting high Government officials to the effect that under no conditions would the United States enter upon a security pact.

The French commentators said the Swanson plan would not require the United States to participate in any consultative pact, but merely would give congressional approval to the President's joining in consultations if he deemed that step wise.

Although this description of the French attitude came from sources ordinarily well informed, it was not given out officially.

In advocating the budgetary system of arms reductions at the three-power discussions today the French submitted explanatory details, but refrained from giving any definite estimate of the size of the projected global cut.

POWERS FAVOR DEBT HOLIDAY EXTENSION

ish delegation disclosed the Italians participated in the conversations.

But the Franco-German talks may be of utmost importance as it was believed the decision that Germany can not pay for the duration of the world crisis might indicate a long moratorium, in event Germany is willing to accept the principle of resuming payments in the future. A long moratorium presumably would involve the attitude of the United States toward a war debts readjustment.

There also was much interest in German Chancellor Franz von Papen's tentative suggestions for a continental entente among Britain, France, Germany and Italy, as made known last night. It would provide for the powers to consult before any important political action.

Military Alliance Denied.

Col. von Papen, through a spokesman, emphatically denied reports circulated abroad that he intends to propose a Franco-German military alliance. He explained the story originated through distortion of his reply to a question by a French newspaperman, who asked what the German chancellor thought of the possibility of such an alliance.

Col. von Papen replied that he was disposed "to study" any plans for better Franco-German relations, as his political faction in Germany has long advocated understanding with France. But the German delegation here vigorously denied the chancellor proposes anything more than a friendly economic understanding. Col. von Papen will return to Berlin Friday for consultation with his cabinet.

The Franco-British tentative accord was reached by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and Premier Edouard Herriot. It provided:

1. The reparations solution must be definite and final.

2. The solution must imply a revival of world confidence.

3. Germany can not be asked to pay now or during the period of recovery from the world crisis.

4. If payments are resumed they must be of such a nature as not to upset international commercial accord.

The two-power negotiations were then suspended to permit the French to consult the Germans.

Cancellation Issue Raised.

The fourth point caused perhaps the greatest difficulty for the two statesmen. It raised the question of complete cancellation and it was remarked that Herriot and MacDonald placed an "if" before this point to enable the French to have freedom in talking to the Germans. Thus the Franco-German conversations will begin without any prearranged decision as to whether Germany must or must not pay further reparations.

"The Anglo-French conversations are interrupted," Herriot told the press. "Tomorrow we begin discussions with the Germans."

It was understood MacDonald had strongly urged Herriot to cancel all European debts and reparations, although the British decided to withhold their scheduled memorandum on the subject. The French contended that MacDonald emphasized the necessity that the Lausanne conference show a united front in view of the American position on debts, and that Europe should demonstrate good will and a willingness to sacrifice in the interests of world recovery. He also was understood to have insisted that the French should not claim any future arrangement for payments in concrete terms which might disturb the economic equilibrium.

Herriot is expected to return to Paris over the week-end.

DEALER SAVES TAX ON REFRIGERATORS

L. H. Ristig Buys Carload to Protect Customers Against Price Rise.

When passage of the recently enacted Federal tax bill seemed assured, L. H. Ristig, president of Ristig, Inc., electrical refrigerator dealers in the 1300 block of H street northeast, telephoned the merchandising department of The Washington Post and requested information as to when the tax would go into effect and how it would be administered.

After contact with the Senate finance committee, The Washington Post informed Mr. Ristig the tax would be effective fifteen days after the measure had been signed by President Hoover, which probably would be on the following day, and that prior order would not avoid the tax unless merchandise was actually shipped from the factory before the effective date.

Acting upon this information, Mr. Ristig immediately ordered a full carload of Servel electric refrigerators, which arrived in Washington yesterday.

Talking with a representative of The Washington Post while the car was being unloaded, Mr. Ristig said that he had made the large investment that was necessary in order to protect his many potential customers among the ranks of Government workers who were delaying buying until a salary reduction or furlough plan had been agreed upon by Congress.

Mr. Shutack was 34 years old. He was a graduate of Georgetown University and made his home here for several years. Ill health forced him to leave the Government service and return to his home in Pennsylvania.

A veteran of the World War, Mr. Shutack was buried with military honors conducted by the American Legion of Nesquehoning. Interment was in St. Mary's Greek Catholic Cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Shutack are his parents, his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Shutack; a son, John Shutack; two brothers, George A. and Andrew Shutack, and three sisters, Mrs. George McNasky, Miss Mary Shutack and Miss Helen Shutack, of New York.

ATKINSON ELECTED BY 'GRAY' VETERANS

Confederates Vote Down Resolution to Hold Meeting With G. A. R.

Richmond, Va., June 23 (A.P.).—United Confederate Veterans and the Sons of Confederate Veterans today named Gen. Homer T. Atkinson, of Petersburg, Va., and Dr. William Dancey, of Savannah, Ga., as their respective commanders in chief for the 1933 Confederate reunion, its place to be determined later.

"Whereever they meet, one thing is certain, and that is they will not meet with the Grand Army of the Republic," said Gen. Harry Renne Lee, of Nashville, who was reappointed adjutant and chief of staff by Gen. Atkinson, immediately upon his election.

He made the statement after the veterans with an echoing rebel yell voted down a resolution that would have invited the "Yankees" to meet with them next year. With a unanimous vote they tabled the resolution indefinitely. In the midst of the roar of disapproval the resolution brought forth, Gen. William Harden, commander of the Georgia veterans shouted, "Let 'em invite us first." The resolution was offered by Veteran R. C. Fitzpatrick, of Asheville, N. C.

Disagree on Color of Flag.

Meanwhile, members of the Confederated Southern Memorial Society were unable to settle their controversy whether the official Confederate flag should have a white border, and went on record as protesting the proposed "peace monument" at Appomattox, as "an insult to Gen. Lee and to every Southern soldier who fought and died for the Confederate cause."

Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, son of a President of the United States, appeared before the Sons of Confederate Veterans to call Lincoln the "boss slacker," and to assail the Virginia Board of Education for adopting "Munzey's History" for use in the Virginia public schools.

The three department commanders named were Gen. William McK. Evans, Richmond, reelected commander of the Army of Northern Virginia; Gen. Simms Letts, of Columbia, Tenn., commander of the Army of Tennessee, and Gen. R. D. Chapman, of Houston, Tex., was commander of the Trans-Mississippi Department.

Gen. DeSaussure Honored.

Gen. DeSaussure was elected honorary commander for life.

The veterans by resolution made the 109th Cavalry, Tennessee National Guard, a unit of the veterans' organization for the purpose of "perpetuating for all time" the memory of those who "served under the immortal cavalryman, Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest."

At the conclusion of the business sessions of the three groups, Miss Mary Maury Fitzgerald, great-granddaughter of Commodore Matthew Fontaine Maury, presented the anchor of the ironclad Merrimac to the Confederate Memorial Literary Society. The relic will be preserved at the Confederate Museum, housed in the old White House of the Confederacy.

District Confederate Camp Is Reinstated

The convention of United Confederate Veterans yesterday overruled the action of Gen. Homer Atkinson, commander of the department of northern Virginia, in suspending the District of Columbia Camp, No. 171, and voted the Washington veterans back into the parent organization. The vote allowed the Washingtonians to vote in the election for commander in chief, in which Gen. Atkinson was made supreme head of the organization.

The breach was of a year's standing. The District veterans alleged they were suspended as a camp without just cause and notification and also illegally because under the constitution of the organization the District was made a separate brigade and was not under control of Gen. Atkinson.

A brief filed at the opening of the convention asked that a board be appointed to study the case. Judge Peter Meldrin, of Georgia, was named a committee of one to study the case, but failed to report. The Washington veterans then appealed to the general convention which sided with them in every particular and lifted the suspension.

SURVIVORS OF LEE'S COMMAND TO MARCH

50 Confederate Veterans to Hold One-Day Reunion Here Tomorrow.

The vanguard of Lee's Army will march on the Nation's Capital tomorrow at 10:10 a. m., headed by Gen. C. A. DeSaussure, commander-in-chief, and his adjutant-in-chief, Gen. Harry Rene Lee—the last parade of the survivors of Fitzhugh Lee, Stuart, Longstreet, Forrest and Early's commands. The forty-second Confederate reunion, being held in Richmond, will close today and the 50 veterans will come to Washington for a one-day post reunion.

The veteran army will be met at the Union Station by a committee headed by Arthur Clarenden Smith, C. N. Nichols, of the Greater National Capital Committee, and Maj. Robert S. Hudgins, grand marshal of the parade. The parade will begin immediately, headed by Gen. DeSaussure and his staff and Dr. George Tabor, commander-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. In the reviewing stand will be Secretary of Navy Charles Francis Adams, Admiral Butler, Admiral Hamlett, Gen. Fuller and Gen. Miles.

At the conclusion of the parade a luncheon will be tendered Gen. DeSaussure and his official party. A basket picnic is being prepared for the reunion guests at Manassas and a drill by the Third Cavalry at Fort Myer at 4 p. m. Appropriate ceremonies and the placing of a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Confederate monument will be held at Arlington at 3 p. m.

The festivities will close with a band concert by the Marine Band at the District of Columbia Memorial at 8 p. m., in which Mary Coward, blind soprano of New York, and Robert Cooley, tenor, will assist.

Evidence of Early Settlers Who Chewed Cuds Is Found

Discovery of Ancient American Cave Man by Smithsonian Expedition in Texas Forms Another Link in Chain of Human History.

(Associated Press.)

Discovery of a strange race of American cave men who "chewed cuds" was announced Tuesday by a Smithsonian Institution expedition just back from Texas.

These vanished Americans, who lived in caves of the mountains of Southwest Texas, previously were unknown to science. They form another link in the chain of human history in North America, that scientists gradually are forging.

The "cuds" these people chewed were leaves of variety of cactus, said Frank M. Setzler, leader of the expedition. They chewed the leaves until all the juice was extracted, as modern Americans chew gum. He found a large accumulation of discarded half-chewed "cuds," with human bones and utensils.

The ancient cave men apparently lived before the days of the white explorers, but their exact date is uncertain. There are some indications that they are related to the old "basket-maker" people who lived in the Southwest 2,000 years ago, and who are next to the oldest known inhabitants of North America.

The "cud chewers" used cactus fibers for baskets, sandals, ropes and even blankets, Setzler said, and ate deer, bear, rabbits, birds and the meat of the "corn cob" cactus along with their cactus juice. They were civilized enough to make arrows.

For some strange reason the cud-chewers had the habit of burying one small child, never more than 2 years old, in the center of each cave in which they lived. Setzler found such a child-burial in each of the seven caves he explored. No adult skeletons were found.

The cud-chewer civilization extended over a region from El Paso east to the Pecos River and from the Rio Grande north to the neighborhood of Alpine, Tex., and possibly further, said Setzler.

Barrymore Family Together for Film

Noted Theatrical Group in Los Angeles to Make Motion Picture.

Los Angeles, June 23 (A.P.).—The Barrymores, members of the noted theatrical family, found themselves together in one city today for the first time in as far back as most of them could remember.

The talented circle was completed with the arrival here of Ethel Barrymore Colt, vivacious brown-haired daughter of Ethel Barrymore. She was met by her mother and two brothers, Samuel Colt and John Drew Colt.

"I'm looking forward with anticipation to this talkie experience," she remarked, disclosing that she expected to appear in a picture which will feature Ethel Barrymore and her brothers, John and Lionel. The girl's mother smiled at her daughter and then flipped:

"You will—until you see your first screen test!"

Catholic U. Designates Special Women's Hall

A special hall has been set aside for use of women students attending summer classes at Catholic University, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Roy J. Deferrari, director of the summer session. The increasing number of women registered for courses made it necessary to establish a campus residence for them, Dr. Deferrari said.

Registration for classes opened yesterday. It will be the first time that women have been able to live on the university campus while attending summer sessions. Accommodations have been arranged to take care of more than 100 women students in St. Thomas Hall, the old manor house on the estate.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CANCER AND TOBACCO OILS.

IN a discussion of the relation of smoking to cancer, which appeared in the Journal of Hygiene this spring, there was much valuable information, even though the debate ended in what might be called a dog fall.

It is quite well proved that long continued applications to the skin of certain tars and oils tends to produce cancer. There is something in such tars and oils which is called carcinogenic, or a cancer-producing principle. Not all oils or tars contain it. Furthermore, it is now known that this principle is found in that part of the oil which has a certain wave length. More than that, they know it is found in that part which vaporizes in a certain range of temperatures.

Thus, although we know so little about the nature of cancer, we do know that certain chemicals can cause it; that at least one such chemical is found in some tars and oils, and that it has a certain wave length and volatilises at a certain temperature. This is a fair body of information on which to stand while continuing the search for the cause of cancer.

These few known facts were applied to tobacco as a cause of cancer. It was found that tobacco oils have the right wave length. They can be burned at about the right temperatures for the volatilization of the cancer principle. However, under the conditions in which smoking is done, the temperatures reached are not those at which this oil is volatilized.

Perhaps a fair way to state it is that in the research work on which the discussion above referred to was based it was proved that tobacco oil contained the cancer producing principle, but it was not proved that it was liberated and applied in a way that produced cancer.

The man who wants to know whether he subjects himself to danger if he smokes will not get much from the discussions on which he can make his decision. The mouth surgeon tells him that he is liable to get cancer if he smokes a pipe. When he asks the mouth surgeon what he bases his opinion on he learns that the only foundation is that the surgeon has seen many mouth cancers among smokers.

When he asks whether the surgeon has checked his opinion by figures of mouth cancer among nonsmokers, or figures of smokers who did not develop cancer he is apt to be told that he has not. The surgeon tells him that he has noted that smokers are apt to have hard areas, called leucoplakia patches, in the mouth, and that cancer is apt to develop in these. But, again, he will find that this is not a very clinical observation.

The tar research man tells him that the tar from tobacco smoke contains a principle which volatilizes at the right temperature, and has the right wave lengths for the cancer producing principle. But he will also admit that his proof is not complete and that he has not produced cancer with it.

To this the man on the other side will say that laboratory conditions are never the same as actual conditions and that experiments done on lower animals are never wholly applicable to man. This is an argument that may be used either for or against tobacco. He may add that the danger does not lie in one use of tobacco, or in one day's use, but in the use of it many times a day for many years.

The innocent bystander finally concludes that he must wait a while longer for the final word.

LIVER NOT TO BLAME.

C. A. S. writes:

I have been troubled for some time with a white coating on my tongue, spotted with small red patches. I feel good and am not constipated. The condition results in unpleasant breath. Is it some form of liver trouble?

REPLY.

The condition is not significant of liver disease or any other serious trouble. You probably sleep with your mouth open and snore, and this is the reason for the symptoms mentioned.

Chew gum. Scrape your tongue with the dull back of a table knife. Train yourself to sleep on your side or face.

GRANULATED EYELIDS.

A. S. writes:

I have granulated eyelids and am losing all my lashes. What causes that?

REPLY.

There are several kinds of granular lids. The most important kind is a communicable disease called trachoma. Certain bacterial infections cause granulated lids. Need of glasses and consequent eyestrain is another cause.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A tailleur striped in white and navy blue, showing incrustations above the pockets and on the cuffs. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie, Paris.)

NEW YORK, June 23.—Don't we seem to be going "back" to wrap-around skirts, though? And back it is—with the wrap in the back—never at the side. Skirts, whole coat dresses, and even the new evening gowns—the one that I sketched for you earlier this week—all fasten in the back. Some fasten right in the middle of the back—others at the side back.

The wrap-around skirt is rather good with the higher waistline, too. For many of the Paris couturieres insist upon the Empire waistline, in every type of frock, too—not only evening wear. By the higher waistline, they do not necessarily mean belts, either—but the molded silhouette that accentuates the bust, and falls, form-fitting straight from below the bust to the knees. And since the mission in life of the wrap-around skirt seems to be to give complete slimness of silhouette with yet sufficient fullness for movement, you can easily see how the wrap-around skirt would suit the high, molded silhouette, can't you?

By the way, let's not take this waistline too seriously. Because there is much division of opinion in the Haute Couture on the subject! The Maison Heim says that there must be nothing more definite in the way of a waistline than the molded material to the figure below the bust; Schiaparelli is uncompromising in her Empire waistline—nothing in her house shows anything else. Patou has dropped the waistline in front—he who has a favoritism for the slightly raised in front girdle, as a rule. And Augustabernard places belts at the top of the hips—but goes on to mold the bodice tightly to the figure above this belt—so it seems rather like a compromise, doesn't it?

Speaking of the wrap-around idea—coats are getting more and more wrap-around—and even some of them wrap clear around now and tie in the back! That's a new one—watch this development—we may all have to have new fall coats, yet, daggon it!

• • • •

I should say a bit arty and ultra, m'deah! But I thought you would like to see the sketch of it, anyhow—the silver gray stockings embroidered in multi-colored squares—oh, tiny, little ones to be sure—and the silver bracelet with multi-colored enamel inserts in it that is worn with the stockings! That is carrying ensemble to whimsical lengths, I should say—but what do you say?

• • • •

Ideas are ideas at that. Bernard et Cie can do things with tailored suits that no one else ever thought of—I do believe. Taking just a plain navy blue suit, for material, for instance, with a fine white line in it, and cutting the upper part of the jacket to look like it didn't mean to be incrusted above the pockets. Just another suit? Oh yes, but with a this and that to it that proclaims it a work of art!

• • • •

Have you any ideas for a telephone hidie? I would like to hear of some! We have combed seventeen-leven countries and seventeen millyun people for ideas—and finally gotten together a few that seemed rather original, certainly more so than other telephone hidies we have seen. You can have all our ideas for sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet—and then will you send us any of your ideas on the subject, too?

Au revoir.

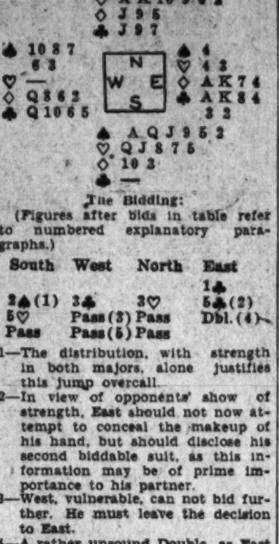
EXPERT MISBIDDING.

BIDDING is the play of the hand before the cards are laid on the table. It is a prediction of the number of tricks a player believes to be available, provided the hand is eventually played at the declaration he suggests. When the hands are dealt, the players know nothing about the distribution of the 13 cards held by their partners. The first bid is a shot in the dark. It is an attempt to establish a line of communication between the "pasteboard armies," captained by the respective players, and each subsequent bid is an effort to strengthen this line of communication and to render it impregnable to enemy attacks. The correct principle of bidding is to give your partner all the information he needs to determine what his course should be at any point, but to conceal, as far as possible, your strength or your weakness from the opposing players, who in this case may be considered as the enemies.

The other day, in a Rubber game, I saw a possible Slam missed in the bidding, because the East player felt that it was more important to conceal part of the strength from the opponents than to correctly guide his partner in a dangerous bidding situation. As a result, this player doubled an adverse contract, which was made.

East—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
			1♣
2♠ (1)	3♣	3♡	5♣ (2)
5♡	Pass (3)	Pass	Dbl. (4)
Pass	Pass (5)	Pass

1—The distribution, with strength in both majors, alone justifies this jump overcall.

2—In view of opponents' show of strength, East should not now attempt to conceal the makeup of his hand, but should disclose his second biddable suit, as this information may be of prime importance to his partner.

3—West, vulnerable, can not bid further. He must leave the decision to East.

4—A rather unsound Double as East has no strength either in hearts or in spades, the suits bid by his opponents. He counts, however, upon two diamonds and one club to defeat the contract.

East, of course, opened the diamond King, and won 2 tricks in that suit, but the rest belonged to North and South. Had East shown his diamond suit, as the strategy of the situation strongly suggested, East and West might have reached a Slam in clubs, which North and South might have permitted them to play and make. The withholding of vital information at a critical moment permitted the opponents to reach a game in the bidding and make it in the play. The strong bidding of North and South clearly disclosed that East should not conceal the disposition of his strength but must aid his partner, whose support was probably entirely distributional, in making a correct decision.

TODAY'S POINTER.

During the contracting you should always give your partner the information he needs to determine his future course. It is a sound principle to conceal as far as possible your strength from your opponents, but it is essential to success to keep your partner informed.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

SECOND FLOOR DRESS SHOPS.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

EVERGREENS REQUIRE FOOD.

THIS applies to the broad-leaved evergreens as well as coniferous evergreens. To the latter class belong the arborvitaes, pines, junipers, spruces and yews.

I think all authorities agree that the best results may be attained with coniferous evergreens by an application of a top dressing in the fall of well-rotted manure, for by the following spring the manure will be in a desiccated condition and can be easily worked into the soil. If you use fertilizer such as bonemeal or sheep manure, you should also apply it as a top dressing after you have planted the evergreens. Subsequent dressings must be made twice during the summer.

In the case of the rhododendron or mountain laurel or any other member of the ericaceae family which are spoken of as broad-leaved evergreens, you must never use any fertilizer containing lime, as these plants do best in an acid soil. Much of the success of growing these plants depends on soil conditions.

As a winter mulch cover the roots of broad-leaved evergreens with several inches of fallen leaves. Always avoid the use of wood ashes. Any fertilizer containing a large percentage of nitrogen in organic and acid form and no lime is good to use on this class of plants.

If you think your soil contains even a remote trace of lime, better correct the condition if you aim to succeed with rhododendrons or laurel. In order to do this, use a combination of humus top soil and aluminum sulphate. The latter chemical may be purchased from any seed house or nursery. Use about fourteen ounces of this material to each square yard of surface.

Never allow the broad-leafed evergreens to go into the winter dry at the roots. Most varieties of this class are shade lovers and do best in a rich, loose soil, where there has been an accumulation of leaves that have undergone a slow process of decomposition and produced an acid soil.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

College Graduate May Have Free Fling at Cosmetics

SINCE we have devoted a column to gifts appropriate for the elementary school and high school graduate, let us give a little thought to the college graduate, too. Certainly, she deserves her full share of loveliness.

The average college graduate has passed her teens and is prepared to start a definite career or take up a new and important position in the home. Whatever other campaign she has planned for herself, she must always include loveliness. While she need not overburden her skin with unnecessary toilet articles, the college graduate may have a free fling at cosmetics. She is not too young to begin a definite beauty routine with a view to preservation. It's a good time to start—when one is 20. Then there'll be less work to be done when one's 30, less wrinkles and chins to worry about when one is 40.

Three Essentials.

Let's start with skin care; for, after all, I still maintain that a beautiful complexion is woman's greatest asset. Those who read my column regularly know by now that I advocate a good cleansing cream and skin tonic as the basic treatment for every woman. With that as a foundation, you can build according to your individual needs; a skin food for the dry skin, a stronger tonic or astringent if the skin is oily, a finishing cream or lotion before make-up and so on. To my mind, the three essentials for every woman are the cleansing cream, skin tonic and skin food. Not that I advocate the last for the oily skin, but every woman needs a touch of emollient cream for the delicate tissues around her eyes to keep the wrinkles from forming.

Make-Up.

Here you can exercise your ingenuity, your desire for individuality, and you can spend as lavishly as you please. For make-up ensembles today are elaborate enough. There are powder, rouge, lipstick, eyeshadow, mascara. The rouges may be obtained in sets of various colors to harmonize with costume colors, or they may be obtained in sets of various types of rouge (cream, liquid and cake form). The powder may be one shade for daytime, another for evening, a finer texture for the dry skin, a heavier type for the oily. As for eyeshadows, these may match the color of the eyes, or contrast with them. There are now metallic shades to harmonize with frocks.

You might not call manicure articles or a set of nail polishes "make-up" but with the vari-colored polishes in vogue today, a set of these would in themselves make an intriguing gift. These may harmonize with anything you please (or nothing at all) costume, make-up, mood.

Of course, bath articles are ever welcome; dusting powders, talcums, toilet waters, perfumes, sets of bottles for bathroom shelves, &c.

And a very practical and beautiful gift is the rubberized traveling bag with compartments for beauty articles and personal effects.

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

Promises to Help With the Canning

THE season of the year is fast approaching when we shall want the whys and wherefores of canning and pickling, and from time to time during the summer we shall give in our column recipes which will help Mrs. Homemaker stock her winter shelf with foods grown in her own garden, or, if not that, those which she has purchased while at the peak of their perfection at minimum of cost. She will want the cold and hot pack methods of preserving fruits and vegetables, and with this in mind we want to call to the attention of our many friends that we have prepared, here at the office, a folder quite complete in itself, for in it we have given four rules for successful canning, with the numerous methods and ways of preparing many fruits and vegetables. We consider this folder very valuable and one which should be in every homemaker's recipe file, so we suggest that before our supply is depleted you write in requesting that we send you one. Of course, don't forget to specify your request, including a self-addressed, stamped envelope. This reminder may seem a bit out of order, but when I tell you that we have received requests saying, "Please send your folder," without the sign of a name, address, or what folder our friends have in mind, you will agree that a little check-up now and then will not go amiss.

And now our plans for the week-end.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

IF June 24 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:40 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:10 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:30 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m.

Those who have artistic or literary talents should find ideal conditions on this date for attempted flights in one of these fields of eneavor. Single men, past 30 years of age, should follow up any romantic leads offered at this time—a happy or profitable marriage may be made. Turn your back on offers of speculation!

The child born on this June 24 will have a rebellious disposition and display a love of freedom and independence and a disregard for conventionality. Its will may be broken, but not bent, and it should be guided, but not forced into doing things. It will have a keen mental grasp and a sense of humor.

You, if born on June 24, will go through life with the best of intentions, but your unfettered impulses often lead you astray. Your faults do not spring from the depths of your generous heart, but are lax mental conditions, such as carelessness, thoughtlessness and forgetfulness.

For the sake of admiration and to tickle your vanity you often allow yourself to become putty-like in the hands of flatterers. Your standards are a trifle artificial, and you are willing to accept show for substance. Spend while you may and save when you have to is your motto. You know how to enjoy life and you like to help others to do the same. Your temper is not easily ruffled, and you usually laugh when others would scold. You can be both gentle and tender with the sick or children.

Although you will never become a slave to any job, you are not a drone. You do what you have to do as quickly as possible, leaving your heart and mind free for the things which you like to do. Your hobbies are many and very hard ridden when your enthusiasm is fresh.

If guilty of fickleness before marriage, you will be a model of constancy afterward. You will take parenthood seriously and will make a devoted father or mother.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

When Lovers Tire.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I wonder if it would be possible for you, who have shown so much wisdom in solving the problems of others, to help me with mine.

I am 41 years old, have never been married, have had several gentlemen friends. They go with me several years, then I suppose get tired of me and quit. I would like to know what is wrong with me. I am not good-looking, but dress well and try to treat them right. I am much concerned about the man who is going with me at the present time. He is a widower and has been going with me three years. He told me he loved me and was wonderful to me at first. Now he is different; doesn't seem to care whether he sees me or not and isn't loving, although he doesn't mistreat me. I am afraid I will lose him. What can I do to hold his love? He is out of work at present. Would that make him treat me the way he does? I shall thank you so much if you will help me. E. D.

We would decidedly think that the man out of work would have much on his mind besides love, and that such a circumstance would at least cramp his style. Love may be woman's chief interest in existence, but for man there are sterner matters to be considered—such as the daily bread. Any man finding his income suddenly cut off instantly has just one thought dinning at his brain, and all others for the time, at least, must give way. Women never have and probably never will have the same interest in making a living that men have. To the woman, no matter how much the feminist she may be, making good is just a stunt, just a bit of showing-off. Her main job, and she knows it, is getting some stalwart to sign on the dotted line. But with man making good is his job, and on it depends his chances to win a woman and care for her through life. When the job goes, love goes, from the man's viewpoint. Hence the lover who can no longer concentrate on love. Bear with him. Make no move to force yourself upon him. Cheer him when you do see him. And stand by.

Regarding past experience you have had, when a man tires, it is usually because the woman has made things too easy for him. The woman who is hard to win gets her man all the way up the aisle and to the altar. The one who only gets half way as a rule is the one who proved herself completely won the moment the hero proposed. Reserve will never fail to work to woman's advantage. But few the women today who know that fact. Men have all the heavy work for them these days. And their boredom is the natural result. Be interested, and interesting; never devoted if you would insure man's enthusiasm, and anchor his vagrant fancy for life.

Pepco to Disburse $50,000 in Interest

Decision Follows Conference; Payment to Be Made in Cash.

After a conference with officials of the Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday, the Public Utilities Commission announced that a sum of approximately $50,000 will be distributed at once by the power company to consumers as accumulated interest on cash deposits.

The interest will be paid to applicants upon request at the company's offices. Approximately 65,000 consumers at present have about $600,000 in cash on deposit with the power company, but the interest will be paid only to those whose accounts have run a year or longer.

This is the first time that such interest payments have been paid prior to the closing of an account. The power company is considering a plan for paying this interest annually in the future. The rate is 5 per cent.

Mrs. William Treloar
R. #2, Charlotte, Michigan

"Every month I was in bed two or three days. I was a nervous wreck and could hardly do my work. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done wonders for me. I have two little boys, three and five years old. They used to get on my nerves but now their noise doesn't bother me at all. I never felt better in my life."

Mrs. Jennie M. Massey
137 Summer St., Lynn, Mass.

"I could write volumes on what your Vegetable Compound has done for me after being in poor health for nine years. After my daughter was born I was a physical wreck. Three bottles of the Vegetable Compound restored me to health. I took it again before my second child was born and had a very easy confinement. I am now over fifty and do all the work for a small rooming house."

Mrs. Allan Martin
1435 N. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

"I suffered from cramps from the time I was a young girl until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish I had taken it years before. I have to work hard because my husband has been sick for three years but I manage to run the house and take care of my little girl, thanks to the Compound."

COZY DIVAN FIGURES IN NURSE LOVE SUIT

Myrtle St. Pierre Tells of Attentions by Husband of Evangelist.

Los Angeles, June 23 (A.P.).—The cozy divan of Myrtle St. Pierre, where she claimed love blossomed between herself and David Hutton, figured again today in the trial of the $200,000 breach of promise suit brought against the singing husband of the evangelist, Aimee Semple McPherson, by the twice-married nurse.

Professions of love and kissing episodes were recounted by Miss St. Pierre in sharp words as she and Hutton's attorney fenced with questions and answers.

"Please do not yell at the witness," Superior Judge Lester Roth admonished Attorney Mark Jones, but it was not long before the lawyer and the witness were at it again.

She related how the first week after they were introduced to one another, Hutton was at her little Hollywood bungalow bestowing kisses on her while she mixed a salad. Then the divan entered the picture.

Mechanics of a Kiss.

"You're sure Dave kissed you?" Jones asked.

"Yes."

"Did you kiss him?"

Miss St. Pierre dropped her shoulders wearily, asked for the smelling salts, inhaled a draught, which brought her bolt upright, and exploded:

"Mr. Jones, that is a strange question. When one person kisses another, naturally the person that is kissed is also kissing the other. That's what a kiss is."

She told how they sat on the divan and David poured forth his love for her and tried to put his arms around her, and how she resisted and he bent low and caressed her hands. But she denied she was in love with him then, believing him only a "nice, pleasing gentleman."

Back to Good Old Divan.

They veered off into a maze of details and Jones said:

"Let's go back to the good old divan."

Then there was another repetition of the first love episode between the couple.

Later in the evening, she said, the profession of love, born within a week of their meeting, grew into a proposal of marriage. Then he tried to kiss her and she warned him, "We must not have any more of these intimacies."

Between recesses the crowd fought for seats and barricades at the courtroom doors groaned.

The day got hotter, but there was no decline in the throng's enthusiasm. Hutton announced he expected to call Victor McLaglen, film star, as a witness, but his attorneys said they knew nothing of it.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IN these days of depression, what right has a production chief in the motion picture industry to draw a salary ranging anywhere from $2,000 to $10,000 per week while employes serving in lesser capacities are slashed right and left, if not entirely decapitated?

The question belongs to Mr. Martin Quigley, publisher of the Motion Picture Herald, and not to this department.

Mr. Quigley has gone in for the distribution of advance proofs of his magazine's leading editorials in a large and helpful way. That is to say, they precede the arrival of the magazine itself by several days. The last batch, which will appear in Mr. Quigley's book bearing date as of June 25, deal exclusively with the peculiar brand of legerdemain that has been employed by a numerous clique in Hollywood to keep its own stipends at a fixed level while all other compensations in the film colony have been pursuing a steadily descending course.

Mr. Quigley wants to know why. So do a large number of other people—although the matter can not be said to be any too much of their business!

It seems to be Mr. Quigley's implication that the actual business of making films is in the hands of an avaricious band of plunderers, actuated by purely selfish motives rather than any altruistic visions of divided profits and the greater glory of their respective enterprises as beneficent organizations with an eye single to the common weal. Says he:

"For a long time the essential profitableness of the motion picture business allowed a margin which was ample to cover mistakes, extravagances, wastes, wages nowhere else in the world duplicated, and various other things which were considered to be part of motion picture production. But for a considerable period the motion picture business has not only not been that profitable but it has not been profitable at all. Hence the dream-world of Hollywood has been living an existence which is not based upon realities.

"The only conceivable justification for salaries of from $2,000 to $10,000 a week is that the enterprises concerned are sufficiently profitable to allow such salaries to be paid.

"What, then, is the justification for the continuance of such salaries in Hollywood under existing conditions, and why and how are they being continued?"

Well, I, for one, will bite, Mr. Quigley, but if you ever find out the answer, tip me off and we'll see if it can be made to work in the publishing racket!

Arthur Tracy, familiarly known to probably a far greater number of people as "The Street Singer," is prevalent on the streets of the Capital this last day or two, although not singing there, having come to Washington to while away a few vacation days.

Mr. Tracy, it will be recalled, appeared recently in person at the Palace and was by way of being a sensation with his tuneful vocalisms.

More recently, he turned out to be the only person in New York who was proprietor of a motor car fit for the triumphant Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam to ride in through Broadway's paper snow storms.

Another visitor practically in our midst is Robert Edgar Long, a former Washingtonian, who of recent years has farmed himself out to Samuel Goldwyn, on whose behalf, along with Lynn Farnol, he composes prose poems and pulsating panegyrics designed for the sole purpose of not giving Mr. Goldwyn's magic lantern shows any the worst of it.

The present concern of all Mr. Long's waking hours is Master Howard Hughes' "Scarface," an epic of Chicago's so-redolent beer parlors and the thick-necked gentlemen who machine-gun them into comparative security, scheduled to smack the customers right out of their pews at Loew's Palace during the seven-day period beginning one week from today, July 1.

The title role in Master Hughes' whimsy is played by Paul Muni, recently starred in New York in the Elmer Rice stage play, "Counsellor at Law." In his support appear, among others, Ann Dvorak, Karen Morley, George Raft, Boris "Frankenstein" Karloff, Vince Barnett and Osgood Perkins.

For many weeks now there have been rumors floating about in the circumambient ether that more than one of the chain-theater interests, so ravenous in acquiring theatrical real estate a few years ago, are now quietly seeking means of deeding their dud properties back to their original owners or lessees.

The Warner Brothers appear to be among the first to effect a partial unloading. They have turned their five theaters in Atlantic City over to Joseph Snellenburg, a former independent theater operator who controlled the Virginia Theater on the Boardwalk. The five houses relinquished by the Warners are the gorgeous, big, atmospheric Warner Brothers Theater, the Stanley and the Virginia, on the Boardwalk, and the Earle and Colonial, uptown.

The idea that any theater on the Boardwalk is necessarily a gold mine is just a lot of salt water taffy!

Or maybe the Warners are merely what you might call a little surf bored!

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

THE end of Jack Sharkey's reign as heavyweight champion of the world will probably date from the night he gives Max Schmeling a return match.

It is ironical that Sharkey, who couldn't win the title in his prime, came into possession of it at a time when he is far past his peak.

This column's suspicion that Sharkey carried Mickey Walker along in their bout last summer is entirely dissipated by Sharkey's performance against Schmeling. The speed of Sharkey's retrogression as a fighter is exceeded only by the rate at which Schmeling has improved.

The title changed hands in a fight, that, after all, was a strange paradox. Schmeling was denied the title because he didn't knock out a slow, lumbering Sharkey, who couldn't fight a lick but who is perhaps the cleverest defensive boxer in heavyweight ranks since Jack Johnson.

Schmeling can be excused for not becoming more reckless in the final rounds. His own corner advised him he was so far in front he need take no chances and it appeared sound advice until the cock-eyed decision was rendered.

Announcer Joe Humphries was half way correct. Calling for silence, he cried: "The winner—and new champion." The last half of the sentence is what floored 'em.

Sharkey's best future course would appear to be the matching of his protege, Ernie Schaaf, with Schmeling. If, by chance, Schaaf eliminated the German, Sharkey could graciously turn his title over to Schaaf, in whom he has a half interest.

The 10 per cent tax on baseball tickets that goes into effect tomorrow at Griffith Stadium, will cost the Washington club money, according to the new scale of prices. To eliminate the pennies, the front office has scaled down the $1.25 grand stand seats to $1.22 and the 75 cent pavilion seats to 72 cents.

The United States Army tennis championship excludes players below rank of a commissioned officer, but the Army team doesn't hesitate to draft privates, corporals and sergeants for the team when Navy is to be met in the annual Leech Cup match. If that is discrimination, make the most of it, but if it isn't, George Washington was a British spy.

The most encouraging item of the Nats' disastrous Western trip is the fact that the Yankees lost two straight games to St. Louis.

Thomas Hurls Nats to 6-1 Victory

Allows Tribe Only 8 Hits in First Start for Washington.

Manush, Judge Clout Homers to Pile up Early Lead.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

LEAGUE PARK, Cleveland, Ohio, June 23.—Clint Brown, Cleveland hurler who has never yet beaten the Nationals, ran true to form against them in the final of the series here this afternoon, and Washington's 6-to-1 victory enabled the Nats to break even on their Western jaunt and to hold on to fourth place in the standing.

A loss by either the Tigers or Mackmen would have put Manager Walter Johnson's charges in third place, while had both lost they would have regained the runner-up berth, a place which they occupied when they started their invasion through the West.

Alphonse (Tommy) Thomas, making his debut in Nat livery, looked quite impressive in the victory. He used his head as well as his arm, and the only inning in which his offerings were combed for a run was the third, the only one in which he granted more than one hit. Except for this round, he was as cool as the provebrial cucumber and was able to tighten up and pull out of trouble.

Manush's 11th Homer Is Decisive.

A homer by Heinie Manush, his eleventh of the season, practically decided the ball game. It came in the first with Buddy Myer on first. Manush also cracked a double in the seventh, which was the final punch of Brown's knockout. He slightly injured the leg which had him on the hospital list when the trip started and gave way to Sam Rice. The injury is not serious, however, and Trainer Mike Martin believes that he will be back in the lineup against the Red Sox in Washington Saturday.

Manush was not the only Nat to pole out a round tripper. Joe Judge getting one starting the fifth. Previously, the veteran first baseman had singled and later he came through with another one-baser to land high-gun honors for the day. Carl Reynolds and Myer were credited with two safeties apiece, with Earl Averill leading the Alien attack with a brace of one-baggers.

With Thomas pitching an airtight game, there was no doubt as to the ultimate winner before the game was half over. Manush's homer put the Nats two up in the first. Porter's double and Averill's single gave the Tribe one of these back in the third. Then Judge came through with his clout over the wall in right center and it was just a case of finishing out the string.

Indians Stage Late Rallies.

The Indians threatened mildly in the seventh when Cissell tripled with one out, but he was left. A double play prevented a single by Averill and a walk from doing any harm in the eighth.

Meanwhile, an error by Burnett after Reynolds and Bluege had singled in the sixth netted a run, while Brown was pounded out before a man was retired in the "lucky" frame. Judge opened this with a single. Myer doubled him to third and Manush's two-bagger cleared the bases, giving Heinie credit for driving home four mates. At this stage, "Sarge" George Connally was rushed to the hill. He stopped the Nats cold, while Willis Hudlin pitched hitless ball in the last two frames.

It was an exceptionally interesting game to watch, with the fielding on both sides being of high order and fine stops or catches the rule rather than the exception.

Hits 3 Homers To Defeat Yanks

"GOOSE" GOSLIN.

Yankees Bow To Goslin's 3 Homers

"Goose" Drives in 7 Runs in Browns' 14-10 Victory.

ST. LOUIS, June 23 (A.P.).—The Browns won another knock-down-and-drag-out ball game from the New York Yankess today, 14 to 10, to get an even break in the four-game series.

Goose Goslin's long-distance hitting and the fact that Lou Gehrig played his 1,103d consecutive game for the Yankees were the twin features. The Goose walloped three home runs, the first two on his first appearances at the plate, and batted in seven runs.

The opening homers gave St. Louis a margin that the Yanks could hardly threaten. Gehrig celebrated tying Joie Sewell for the second best record for long-distance playing in the major leagues by clouting his eighteenth homer of the year in the fourth inning and Babe Ruth walloped four baser No. 22 in the seventh.

Gehrig still is far behind the all-time major league record of 1,307 consecutive games, made by Everett Scott with the Red Sox and the Yankees but he has accomplished a feat of his own. The first of his long string was played with the Yankees on June 1, 1925, and he never has played with another club. Neither Scott nor Sewell did all their work for one club.

10,000 Watch Londos Beat Grobmeier

Third Airplane Spin Takes Effect in 41 Minutes.

Blackstock Is Carried Out After Defeat by Dusek.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

HERR FRED GROBMEIER, the only wrestler in the world who operates without a bay window, brought his batting average against Jim Londos up from .0 to .00 last night at Griffith Stadium after Londos had jammed Grobmeier's celebrated scissors hold after 41 minutes of reasonably interesting growling.

A massive crowd viewed the contest, much of which was fought out with both principals sitting on the floor. The lesser employes of Joe Turner estimated the mob to be about 15,000 but George King, the firm's business manager, who hasn't any illusions, allowed that he'd be a son of a bronze ping pong ball if there were more than 10,000 witnesses to the night's entertainment.

Previous Wild Scenes Are Lacking.

It was Londos' second win here over Grobmeier, and it failed to occasion the wild scenes of several weeks back when several hundred overly optimistic patrons streamed out of their pews when Grobmeier secured a figure four scissors, expecting to see the meal ticket of Eastern rassling go down before a comparative unknown. Last night Grobmeier secured an uncounted number of his favorite holds, but the audience kept both its decorum and its collective seat.

The most interesting phases of the match were Grobmeier's comebacks. People started to stream out of the stadium when Londos secured an airplane spin and drop after 20 minutes, but Grobby squirmed out and duplicated the stunt twice more. The second time fooled even Manager Ed White, who leaped into the ring with Londos' bathrobe while Grobmeier was being spun around and around in the night air, only to see the itchy-nosed sharp-ribbed eventual loser summon up an atom or two of strength and aidle out of it. There was no fooling about the third airplane spin. Grobmeier had to be carried out of the ring.

Londos Ducks at Mystery Shots.

As Londos was putting on his towel muffler and the usual ring of fans were gaping at the gladiators and gingerly testing the resiliency of the mat, several shots rang out and Londos instinctively ducked. Nothing happened, so the incident may have been nothing more than some premature Fourth of Julying, or else a sorry commentary on the ability of local gangster-marksmen.

An intersectional weight-lifting and carrying record was broken in the semifinal. Rudy Dusek smeared a substitute, Marshall Blackstock, in 13 minutes with a creaking cradle rock that looked as if it hurt pretty badly. Blackstock lay there, a huge mound of humanity after the match and Benny Bortnick, the produce dealer turned referee, picked him up like a great hind of elephant beef and waddled to the dressing room amid cheers.

The best preliminary saw George Zaharias dump Frank Brunowicz in 23 gory minutes. Some fellow had to sweep up after the two bruisers finished. Brunowicz gave up on a crab hold. Jim McMillen and Pat O'Shocker went to a rather listless 30-minute draw. Mike Walker tossed Jerry Monohan in 12 minutes, and Gino Garibaldi drew with the elderly George Kotsonaros in 30 minutes in "The Battle of the Centrury" plants.

Promoter Turner announced last night that Joe Stecher, world's heavyweight champion in 1924, will head next week's bill. Tickets have been reduced. The new scale is $1, $1.50 and $2.

Giants Acquire Hoyt; Mitchell Is Released

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Waite Hoyt, former star pitcher for the New York Yankees, returned to the major league club that first had him under contract today when he signed with the New York Giants.

Hoyt's father signed him to a Giant contract in 1915 when Waite was a schoolboy, but the Giants cast him loose in 1918 before he ever threw a ball in the majors.

To make room for Hoyt on the Giant roster, Manager Bill Terry released the veteran spitball pitcher, Clarence Mitchell, and then signed him as a coach.

Schmeling, Better Liked In Defeat, Plans to Sail

NEW YORK, June 23 (A.P.).—Better liked in defeat than he ever was in triumph, Max Schmeling, former world's heavyweight champion, planned to sail for Germany Saturday night on the liner Columbus.

The sportsmanlike way in which the young German accepted the disputed decision awarding his title to Jack Sharkey, of Boston, Tuesday night won him hundreds of friends, attested by a flood of congratulatory telegrams and messages which have been coming to his hotel since the fight.

No Investigation Likely.

Although there have been many complaints about the decision and threats of an investigation of the New York State Athletic Commission, it appeared probable the whole affair soon would blow over.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, who charged Schmeling had been robbed of the decision, said he did not plan to carry his complaints to the commission.

"It wouldn't do any good," Joe said, "and the best plan is to let the whole matter drop. I'm hurting my own game by talking too much, what with all these threats of legislating boxing out of existence in New York. I'm close as a clam from here on out."

Jacobs said they had several matches in view for Max, with Larry Gains, Canadian Negro, in London; Mickey Walker, or some other American heavy in New York in September.

Sharkey in Seclusion With Black Eye.

Sharkey was in seclusion in his home in Chestnut Hills, near Boston, nursing the black, puffed left eye he received in the fight, the only mark on either battler.

The athletic commission has taken no official notice of Jacob's charges and has called in none of the principals or officials to explain things at tomorrow's regular meeting. Bert Stand, commission secretary, said the commission would be willing to listen to any complaints or charges, but indicated he expected none to be made.

MACKS BEAT CHISOX IN FINAL

CHICAGO, June 23 (A.P.).—Big George Earnshaw restricted the White Sox to 4 hits today, but the Philadelphia Athletics had quite a tussle before winning the final game of the series, 4 to 3.

Ted Lyons gave 12 hits, but kept them apart fairly well, while errors, 5 by the Sox, and 4 by Philadelphia, caused both hurlers trouble.

VINES BEATS HOPMAN EASILY

WIMBLEDON, England, June 28 (A.P.).—Seven of America's foremost tennis stars, five men and two women, today swept into the fourth round of the English tennis championships, joining Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who previously earned her brackets.

Led by Ellsworth Vines, who avenged his recent defeat by Harry Hopman, of Australia; Frank Shields, Wilmer Allison, Gregory Mangin, Sidney Wood, Helen Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey, won their third round matches. Two of the American invaders lost, Johnny Van Byn falling before the steady playing of the English Davis Cup star, Fred Perry, 6—3, 6—4, 6—0, and Dorothy Andrus Burke, of Stamford, Conn., losing to Doris Metaxa, of France, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

British Predict Title for Vines.

Vines, shaky in his early matches, was more like the Vines of 1931 United States championship, beating Hopman with so much ease that many English experts were ready to predict he would win the English title. He won in straight sets, 7—5, 6—2, 7—5.

Shields came nearer being eliminated than any of his teammates, but rallied from the shadow of defeat to win from E. D. Andrews, New Zealand star, in five bitterly contested sets, 4—6, 13—15, 6—3, 7—5, 6—2. Andrews injured his ankle in the first game of the third set and thereafter Shields was always in command.

Wood, defending champion, took only three sets to shove Antoine Gentien, one of France's lesser lights, out of the tournament, winning, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2. Mangin also won in three sets, eliminating E. R. Avory, of England, 7—5, 6—1, 6—4. Allison, however, was carried to four sets before disposing of R. Miki, Japanese Davis Cup player. The score was 6—4, 6—0, 2—6, 6—1.

Mrs. Moody and Vines Advance in Doubles.

The two United States title holders, Vines and Mrs. Moody, pairing together in their first tournament, won the first-round match in the mixed doubles, beating an English combination of Hodges and Stork with the loss of only three games, 6—0, 6—3.

Joining the five American men in the fourth round were I. Aoki and Jiro Satoh, Japan; Jean Borotra and Paul Feret, France; E. Maier, Spain; Jack Crawford, Australia; Hans Timmer, Holland; Roderick Menzel, Czechoslovakia, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, J. S. Olliff and Fred Perry, of England.

KNIGHT'S CALL WINS IN FAST MILE AT WASHINGTON PARK

Yonkel Takes Place From Con Amore

Favorite Runs Third in Western Debut in 1:36:4 Mile.

Mills Rides Faireno to Victory at Aqueduct.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 23 (A.P.). — A spectacular stretch run gave the Audley Farm Stables' Knight's Call victory in the Victory Hotel purse, best event at Washington Park today, and spoiled Con Amore's Western debut.

Knight's Call, with H. Schutte astride, came up with a rush to nip Abe Bartelstein's Yonkel, with Con Amore, the favorite and one of the most consistent campaigners of the 1931 season, in the show spot. Knight's Call ran the mile in 1:36 3-5, and paid $7.46 to win.

Faireno Repeats

At Aqueduct.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 23 (A. P.).—Faireno, hero of the Belmont Stakes, came right back with another flashy effort when he carred the silks of William Woodward's Belair stud to a handy score in the Shevlin before a large crowd here this afternoon. The son of Chatterton, with Hank Mills in the saddle, registered by a length and a half over the Brandon Stable's Brandon Mint, which was making his first appearance since the Kentucky Derby. W. R. Coe's Pompeius, favorite, was beaten four lengths for the place.

Faireno picked up 123 pounds and covered the mile distance in 1:38 flat. He was held at 2 to 1 and added $5,850 to his winnings.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

Asbestos gave the folks a winner yesterday when Dark Hope cake-walked home and paid off at $8.46. The $6.46 profit sent the bank roll above the $50 mark and it now stands at $54.33. McKell, his other selection, was scratched when conditions didn't suit him exactly. Today Asbestos is playing two long shots.

TOMBEREAU sprinted to the lead soon after the start and, although tiring slightly near finish, lasted to hold VERMAJO.—Latter, in close quarters on inside in early racing, came to outside in stretch to finish strongly and barely missed. BEST MAN was forwardly placed from start. MURKY CLOUD suffered interference, but faced well. DARK AYRE, shuffled back early, raced wide to stretch. LOUIE DEAR could never get to leaders and tired in stretch. MAID OF HONOR was in trouble after going half the trip.

OLD HILLSIDE, showing much improvement, sprinted to the front soon after the start and, displaying good speed, led to the finish. POLYGENY was in close quarters around far turn, but continued gamely and finished well. BRONX PARK dashed in contention on outside after leaving backstretch, but faltered in final drive. HERNANDO was used up racing to contention and had little left at finish. LITTLE CONNELLY saved ground where possible. PRINCE SULIEMAN and BRIGHT CHESTNUT were shut off on far turn. STRIDEAWAY made a bobble early and was eased back and pulled up in stretch.

SIS AGNES was outrun to the stretch, then came fast on outside to wear down early leaders and win going away. SARAZEN II took a good lead after leaving back stretch, but was tiring at end. FLAG TIME was unable to keep up with leaders in early running and was forced to the outside, but closed gamely. MUCKER had much early speed, but weakened near end. KINGSPORT tired. NORA D was started from outside the gate.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK HOPE, $8.46, $4.62, $3.40; OUR FANCY, $4.66, $4.38; CATHOP, $3.70.

DARK HOPE remained closest to the pace of HIGHER in early running and, taking command in stretch, responded gamely to punishment when challenged by OUR FANCY in last furlong and was slowly drawing out at end. OUR FANCY raced well up under slight restraint to stretch, moved up on even terms with winner a sixteenth out, but hung slightly near end. CATHOP was blocked while making his run in stretch, but continued well to the end. MINTON was also going gamely at finish. HIGHER tired. DARK HOPE worked a full mile and one-eighth.

KNIGHT'S CALL, saved close up on outside in early running, came fast through stretch to take command when CON AMORE began to tire and held YONKEL at finish. YONKEL, as usual, was outrun early, saved much ground around stretch turn and closed gamely, but could not catch winner. CON AMORE was used up making the pace and had little left at end. PROSE AND POETRY went fairly well, but was never a serious threat. STREET SINGER was outrun throughout. KARL EITEL and PHANTASIME had early speed, but tired when the real racing began.

VOLTA MAID, close up from start, caught early leaders tiring after entering stretch and, getting to the front, held BLACKSTRAP at finish. BLACKSTRAP improved his position gradually on outside in early stages and was going gamely at end. OH DAVE raced rather wide and bore out in last furlong, but bested others. SIR MELTON and SOBIEHA were used up making the pace and both tired. ON SIR and LADY COUVIN met interference when OH DAVE bore out near end. LADY COUVIN made up much ground from a slow beginning. BILLY JONES was pocketed on inside for the first half mile and had little chance. STRAIGHTAWAY had early speed, but was crowded and tired. PLAYDALE was never dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good for all but NIATO from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Latter was off badly and closed an immense gap to finish fast. HARUM SCARUM, badly outrun early, closed well. WEE DROP tired badly in last furlong. IRENE T. was badly outrun all the way. LONELL tired.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

WASHINGTON PARK, JUNE 23.

DEAR AL:

My side kick, Bill, has jumped across the border for fishing and recreation, so he says, but my hunch is that he has gone in training for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, which all seem to be playing straight, place and show. Well, here's hoping that Bill doesn't get too wet and that I can pick out a few hot ones during his stay in Canada. Yours, MIKE.

FIRST RACE—Your guess is as good as mine. There's no excuse for playing anything in the race. If you must play it, try LLANDRAFF because he has the rail. MICHIGAN LAD and VENNIE H. for what is left.

SECOND RACE—DORIS JEAN should be able to handle her package. COUSIN JO may spill the beans, with FRENCH HONEY to show.

THIRD RACE—FLYING HOME should take the lead and show the way home. Has lots of early speed and number one post position. PLUCKY GIRL and HYANNISPORT for what is left.

FOURTH RACE—FINNIC has an excellent chance to grab the fourth heat. SALISBURY and MARTY FLYNN will be knocking at the door.

FIFTH RACE—ANITA ORMONT. You may think this miss is outclassed, but she is a stretch-running fool and I figure her the best bet of the day with NELLIE CUSTIS and PANCHIO chasing her home.

SIXTH RACE—Old WIRT G. BOWMAN is ready, and with a feather on his back should lead this bunch of mavericks. MOTHER'S CHOICE and DIXIE LAD have outside chances.

SEVENTH RACE—If HARAMZADA gets away, it should be all over but the shouting. ROLLING SEA and ORMONTIME have worked well and should get a few "calls" anyway.

MALLOY PUBLIC LINKS VICTOR

148 by Youth Wins Golf Berth

To Represent Capital in National Event at Louisville.

Downey Second With 152; Burton, With 153, Is Third.

NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD George Malloy invaded the East Potomac Park links yesterday and showed the way to a band of players of that course in the qualifying for the national public parks tournament scheduled at Louisville next month.

As a result of scoring a 148 for 36 holes, young Malloy, a brother of Billy Malloy, assistant professional at Columbia Country Club, wins free transportation and expenses to the national tournament.

Malloy, a graduate of Business High School and a frequenter of the Rock Creek links, played the East Potomac layout in consistent figures, taking just two strokes over par to negotiate the A and B courses which the field of 51 traversed.

In the morning Malloy took 36 strokes to equal par on A course going out and came home over C in 38, or one over par. In the afternoon he clipped one stroke from par on the outward nine but slowed down a trifle coming in with a 39, two over par.

Trailing Malloy by four strokes in second place was John Downey, who improved during the afternoon round to hang up a 75 after a 77 morning nine for a total of 152. Robert Burton finished third with a total of 153.

Harlan Will, whose 71 for the morning nine placed him three strokes ahead of his nearest competitor entering the final eighteen holes, slipped badly on the second round and took an 83 for a total of 154, which gave him fourth place. Bradley H. Burrows and Louis Fuchs brought up fifth and sixth, respectively with 155 and 156.

Downey, Burton, Will, Burrows and Fuchs also gained eligibility for the national tournament, but under the conditions of the qualifying will not have their expenses paid.

M. BENNETT'S SCORE BEST IN GOLF

172 Card Wins Junior Title at Congressional Club.

THE junior championship of the Congressional Club was won yesterday by Melville Bennett, with Franklin N. Parks runner-up, reversing the outcome of the junior contest last year, when Parks won and Bennett finished in second position.

There was considerable disappointment yesterday in the high scores which marked the tournament. Both youngsters have been playing the course recently in the low 70s, but yesterday, probably due to pressure, the cards were far above the average.

Competition was 36 holes medal play and Bennett's two rounds were 88 and 84 for a total of 172, while Parks could not do better than 95 and 85, aggregating 180. Both lads had trouble with their putting, Bennett starting badly with six three-putt greens in the first nine. His card, with too many 5s and 6s, was as follows:

Out..... 6 5 5 6 5 5 6 4 4—46
In..... 5 6 5 4 3 4 6 5 4—42—88
Out..... 6 6 5 4 5 4 5 5 4—44
In..... 5 5 4 5 3 6 4 5 3—40—84

William E. Shea, a 15-year-old contender, finished 96, 94—190, and Ed Harding, jr., Robert Wilson and other juniors were far in the rear.

Win Over Cards Moves Giants Up

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—A good pitching job by big Freddy Fitzsimmons and some early and timely hitting against Paul Derringer gave the Giants a 6-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today and an even break for the four-game series.

The triumph gave New York a record of nine games won out of thirteen starts in their home stand against the West and moved them out of seventh place in the standing. With the defeat of Brooklyn they moved into fifth.

LONE UPSET IN DOUBLES TOURNEY

Shore-Latona Beaten as Mid-Atlantic Event Opens.

WITH much more than its share of good tennis being displayed, the Middle Atlantic doubles tournament commenced yesterday at Columbia Country Club marked by the downfall of the seeded No. 3 team and the splendid play on the part of those beflanneled unknowns generally classed as underdogs.

Frank Shore and Anthony Latona, the pair of volleying dervishes who were expected to go far in the tournament, went out in the first round at the hands and racquets of Barney Welsh and Ran Shields, a Duke and Washington and Lee combination, with lambasting overheads and more fight than you could shake a racquet at. The scores were 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3. The winning team, which was formed only yesterday, played veteran tennis with youthful zest.

Shields, Welsh Strong From Start.

Shields was the steady rock of the quartet, Welsh the audacious netman whose shots continually were good. Shore and Latona were visibly shaken after losing the first set, and even though they squeezed through the second, the ultimate result was not much in doubt. Welsh and Shields volleyed as well, and backed that up with nice service returning.

Clarence Charest, bordering on 50 years of age, but still retaining the old zip to his forehand drive, paired with youthful Rickey Willis, but went down to defeat 2—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—2 before the chop and loop drive combination of Joe Rutley and John Ladd.

Some of the most devatsating tennis of the day was played by Freddy Sendel, former Mexican Davis cupper, and Alan Staubly, who beat the upset team of Addison Grant and Kurt Krause mercilessly, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2.

FIRST ROUND—Deck and Seidel defeated Howson and Todd, 6—4, 6—3, 8—6; Hermann and Gould defeated McLean and Doyle, 4, 6—2, 6—1; Welsh and Shields defeated Shore and Latona, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3; Dudley and Dudley defeated Kimmell and Austin, 4—6, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3, 7—5; Parrin and Godfrey won over H. Moorhead and Bolling by default; Garnett and Karrick defeated Tom Moorhead and Carlisle, 6—2, 6—0, 6—2.

Upshur Moonhead and McVay defeated Coe and Lystrad, 6—0, 6—0, 6—4; Smith and Graham defeated Yeomans and Quinn, 6—0, 6—2, 6—0; Hunt and Buchanan defeated Taylor and Thurwell, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4; Considine and Mason defeated Upham and Sherburne, 6—1, 6—0, 6—4; Staubly and Sendel defeated Grant and Krause, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2; Doyle and Hill defeated White and Walker, 6—4, 6—3, 8—6.

SECOND ROUND—Rutley and Ladd defeated Charest and Willis, 2—6, 6—3, 8—2, 2—6, 6—2.

DUTRA LEADS OPEN WITH SCORE OF 69

British and American crowns, blew up completely on the homeward nine, on which he needed 44 strokes and eliminated himself with a total of 82.

There hasn't been anything like it since they used to bat the old gutta percha ball around in obscure places. Galleries aggregating perhaps 8,000 spectators, including the renowned Bobby Jones, as well as the veriest duffers, were treated to the spectacle of internationally famous stars struggling—and failing—to crack 80 in a tournament supposedly for the championship of the world. A few couldn't even break 90.

Most of them blamed the wind, although it didn't seem exceptional for these ocean-bordered shores. Others, like Jim Barnes, insisted the aprons of many greens penalized good approach shots. The putting surfaces, others said, were too slippery.

Nevertheless, Olin Dutra, bucking the same conditions as everybody else, sailed along so smoothly that he might easily have posted a 66 with a few more breaks on the greens.

Dutra dropped a stroke to par on the very first hole by approaching short, but thereafter was par or better on every hole. His long irons were under magnificent control, his short game deadly. He sank a 12-footer on the eleventh, and another putt of barely 7 feet on the fifteenth for birdies that enabled him to conquer old man par. His putts for birdies rimmed the cup on the ninth and sixteenth. On the last two holes they just slipped past the hole. He had only 30 putts for the entire round.

Dutra's four-stroke margin is a record for the opening round of the national championship, so far as the published archives revealed tonight.

Yale Is Favorite On Thames Today

New London, Conn., June 23 (A.P.).—The sun-drenched Thames, host in its day to New England's historic whaling fleet, beckoned a smiling welcome today to the slim eight-oared shells of Harvard and Yale, and the closing chapters tomorrow of the 1932 intercollegiate rowing season.

In the dusk of evening, for the seventieth time in 80 years, the varsities will pull out of Bartletts Cove on an ebbing tide and swing down the river to the railroad bridge, 4 miles away. In the morning, as a general tightener for the excitement of the evening, the freshmen, and then the junior varsity eights of the ancient rivals, will race 2 miles upstream on the varsity course.

The Yale varsity, undefeated in the sprint campaign this season, is a 2-to-1 favorite to conquer a heavy Harvard eight that has won but one race so far this season.

Twin-City Cancels Tow-Olin Battle

Three all-star eight-round bouts will feature next Monday night's boxing show at Twin-City Arena, it was announced last night by Promoter Charles E. Cornell, who stated he was forced to cancel the proposed Bob Tow-Bob Olin bout because of contractual difficulties with Tow's manager, "Pa" Godwin.

"Godwin asked an exorbitant price for Tow's services," asserted Cornell, "after I thought I had been doing him a favor by securing the Olin bout for him. In my opinion, this was merely an effort to avoid Olin, who is really stepping up the light-heavyweight ladder. I decided, therefore, to call the bout off."

The principals for the three eight-rounders, Cornell stated, will be announced within 48 hours. A pair of sixes, already scheduled, will present Young Van, rising young local middleweight, against Joe Glazer, Baltimore, and Ray Bowen, Washington welter, against Charley

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

TWO of the largest microphones ever designed will be in use by the N. B. C. when the Democratic convention opens in Chicago next Monday. The microphones will be of the parabolic reflector type, each 6 feet in diameter, and are said to be capable of sharper focus on pick-ups from distant corners of the Chicago Stadium.

During the Republican convention parabolas of 3 feet in diameter were used but the Chicago Stadium is so huge that these were not quite effective in picking up voices from the far corners of the hall.

"Jack Sharkey was awarded the heavyweight championship of the world after a colorless fifteen-round battle"—Alan Gould, Associated Press sports writer.

One did not gain this impression from the thrilling description of the fight given to the radio audience by Charles Francis Coe and Graham McNamee. At the conclusion they were so excited they could hardly talk. Did Coe and McNamee overplay the fight?

It is reported that the night of Gene Tunney's last great fight twelve people dropped dead from excitement while listening to the radio description. No returns have been received as yet from the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

It is claimed that even a national political convention, such as the forthcoming Democratic gathering at Chicago, where the balloting is apt to prove exciting, will take its toll of listeners.

ROSE CHANELLE, one of the most popular local radio entertainers, will blend her rich contralto with the strains of Sidney's Orchestra during the Royal Pilsen program over WRC at 5:45 p. m. today. Several popular songs, including the new number, "I've Got a Date With an Angel," will be presented.

Ann Leaf, organist, recently performed the radio premiere of her latest composition, "The Mirage," during one of her Sunday afternoon concerts. It represents the thoughts of a traveler lost in a great desert. She has had so many requests for its repetition that she will include it in another concert in the near future.

"Don Caesar de Bazan," a three-act comedy, will be presented by the Radio Guild Players this afternoon. (WRC, 3:15 o'clock). The play is based on the life of one of Victor Herbert's characters.

"Roosevelt Nominating Speeches to Take Three Hours, All Others Four."—Newspaper headline.

Chicago hotel keepers will probably greet this announcement with joy—anything to keep the crowd in Chicago a few days longer—but the radio audience wouldn't listen to a three-hour oration by Julius Caesar if he could be scheduled today.

ALTHOUGH George Olsen sent him a new baton, a gleaming white one with his name inlaid in mother-of-pearl, Ben Bernie will continue to use the old fiddle bow in directing his orchestra.

College of Music Plans To Award Certificates

Certificates will be awarded students of the preparatory school of the Washington College of Music at exercises at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night at the college. Dr. Hugh Rowland Roberts, president of the college, and Mrs. Fanny Amstutz Roberts, dean, will be in charge of the exercises.

Eighty students will receive recognition for their work during the past year, and a program will be given by those who have attained high standing. The following students will receive sixth grade certificates: Pauline Slavin, Ruth Hartzell, Anna Sakolsky, Mildred Leith Shackleford, Olga Miller, Frances Marcia Wolf and Edith Holmes.

RESERVE BANK CUTS RATE 1-2 PER CENT

Reduction in New York Seen as Part of Expansion in Credits.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York today cut its rediscount rate to 2½ per cent from 3 per cent.

A reduction in this rate—which is the rate at which member banks may borrow at the reserve bank—had been expected when the reserve began its vigorous credit expansion program through buying U. S. Government securities in April.

The heavy outflow of gold from this country during the spring months, however, tended to offset the reserve program. With the gold outflow virtually ended when the Bank of France completed the transfer of her balances here into gold last week, however, it became feasible for the Reserve Bank to take another step toward facilitating the free flow of credit.

The 2½ per cent rate is the lowest since last summer, when the bank cut to 1½ per cent, the lowest in its history. Last summer's easy money program, however, was more passive than the present one, since it did not involve the heavy buying of Government securities in the open market.

Last autumn, following the British lapse from the gold standard, the rediscount rate was jacked up as high as 3½ per cent. Other banks of the Reserve System are currently on a 3½ per cent rate. The lower rate in New York should, in theory at least, tend to drive funds into the interior.

The reduction in the New York rate to 2½ per cent brings it to the level of the Bank of England and the Bank of France rates.

Frisco Completes Costs Slash Plan

I. C. C. Told Reduction Will Be Ready July 1; Loan Sought.

(Associated Press.)

The St. Louis, San Francisco Railroad Co. yesterday advised the Interstate Commerce Commission that it had prepared a plan for reducing its fixed charges and would submit it by July 1. The statement was made in a second supplemental application for a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan. The application requests $4,390,086, of which $908,248 is for taxes; $2,481,838 for interest on its prior lien bonds and $1,000,000 for additional working capital.

The road previously had asked for $9,364,808 in addition to a loan of $1,800,000 already obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The commission was advised that bank loans totaling $5,974,222, due in July, would be extended.

In granting the $1,800,000 loan some weeks ago the commission specified that the Frisco must reduce its fixed charges. No agreement to do this was required before the first loan could be obtained.

Receivers Named In DeForest Radio

Plant, Patents and Other Assets Valued at $950,000.

Wilmington, Del., June 23 (A.P.).—Federal Judge John P. Nields today appointed Leslie S. Gordon, of Ridgewood, N. J., and William Bergland, of Wilmington, as receivers until further order of the court for the DeForest Radio Co., of Passaic, N. J.

The bill of complaint was filed yesterday by Sarlat Bros., Inc., of New York, a creditor with claims of $13,134. It was alleged and admitted that the company is unable to meet maturing obligations. Receivers for the concern were appointed Tuesday by the New Jersey courts.

The Sarlat bill stated the company has outstanding $208,600 in notes payable by July of next year and $50,000 in other notes, part of which are payable June 30 of this year, and about $34,000 owing to creditors.

Assets of the concern, the bill stated, consist of valuable patents, plant equipment worth about $650,000 and materials worth about $300,000.

Examiners Close Five Small Banks in Chicago

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—The Hyde Park-Kenwood National Bank and the Jackson Park National Bank and the South Shore State Bank, all owned by John A. Carroll, failed to open today. The Hyde Park Bank had $3,200,000 on deposit, $600,000 capital and $400,000 surplus. The Jackson Park National had $800,000 deposits, $200,000 capital and $50,000 surplus. The South Shore State had $500,000 deposits, $200,000 capital and $100,000 surplus.

The Cottage Grove State Bank, another South Side institution, was also closed. Its capital was $200,000 and surplus $100,000. The State auditor had no estimate of deposits.

Another South Side bank closing today was the Universal State Bank, which had $777,000 on deposit and $200,000 capital.

The Pinkert State Bank in suburban Cicero also closed with $360,000 deposits, $250,000 capital and $50,000 surplus.

Twenty-five smaller banks in the city have failed within the past two weeks.

Eastern Concerns Join in Oil Curb

Agree With Kansas Plan on Crude Withdrawals to Aid Sales.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—As a move to aid independent producers in marketing their product, leading Eastern oil companies have agreed to curtail their withdrawals of crude oil from storage by 50 per cent, it was announced today by Thurman Hill, chairman of the Kansas Public Service Commission, who has been conferring with oil executives.

Mr. Hill said he had requested the Eastern oil interests to limit their crude withdrawals from stocks to not more than 100,000 barrels a day for the next three months, and for the succeeding three months to not more than 80,000 barrels daily.

They are now withdrawing about 900,000 barrels daily.

INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT IS LESS DURING MAY

Bank Loans Also Contract Before U. S. Bond Buying; Building Declines.

Despite a notable increase in automobile production in May, the composite index of industrial production declined further during the month, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday in its regular monthly business survey.

Virtually every major industry showed some slight seasonal recession from April, and bank loans continued to contract in the face of increased investments in United States Government securities. The summary also covers the first half of June.

The text of the official review follows, in full:

"Volume of production in basic industries and employment at factories decreased further in May, and wholesale prices declined. Foreign withdrawals of gold, which had been in large volume in May and the first half of June, practically stopped after the middle of the month.

Mines and Plants Drop.

"Production at mines and factories declined further in May, and the board's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production showed a reduction from 64 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in April to 61 per cent in May. Output of coal was substantially reduced, particularly in the anthracite fields; shipments of iron ore showed less than the usual seasonal increase, production of iron and steel declined, and activity at textile mills and shoe factories was further curtailed. In the automobile industry output increased considerably.

"In the first part of June activity in the steel and cotton industries was reported to have declined further, while output of automobiles continued at about the same rate as in the latter part of May.

"Further reductions in employment and earnings of factory workers accompanied the smaller volume of manufacturing output in May, particularly in the steel and machinery industries, and in the textile and clothing trades. Employment at automobile plants and in the seasonally active food industries showed an increase.

Building Values Lower.

"Value of building contracts awarded, according to reports to the F. W. Dodge Corporation, after increasing somewhat in April and May, declined slightly in the first half of June, reflecting chiefly smaller awards for public works and other nonresidential building.

"Railroad freight traffic decreased further in May, the largest reduction being in shipments of coal and miscellaneous freight. Sales of department stores in leading cities, which had increased substantially during April, were smaller in May.

"Prices of commodities at wholesale were 1.7 per cent lower in May than in April, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. There were large decreases in prices of many domestic agricultural products and of hides and textiles. Prices of petroleum products advanced.

"During the first three weeks of June market quotations for a number of nonagricultural commodities were relatively steady, and prices of sugar, meats and live stock increased. Prices of wheat, after considerable fluctuations, were at unusually low levels at the beginning of the third week in June.

Country's Gold Loss.

"Withdrawals of gold from the United States continued through May and the first half of June and the country's stock of monetary gold declined by $435,000,000 between May 4 and June 15. After that date there was no further decline in the total stock of monetary gold, continued gold exports representing gold previously earmarked by foreign central banks.

"During the first part of May continued purchases of United States Government securities by the reserve banks enabled member banks further to reduce their discounts; in later weeks, however, funds released through these purchases were absorbed by the demand for gold for export, and there was also a decrease in member bank reserve balances.

"Loans and investments of reporting member banks in leading cities, which had declined sharply earlier in the year, showed wide fluctuations after the middle of May. In the middle of June total loans and investments were larger than a month earlier, the increase in holdings of United States securities being more than sufficient to offset declines in other investments and in loans.

"Money rates in the open market remained at low levels. Rates on prime commercial paper were reduced to a range of 2½-2¾ per cent in the second week of June."

EXCHANGE PROHIBITS SALES BY PACKAGES

Excessive Cost to Investor Assigned as Reason for Bunch Stock Bar.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange today forbade its members to engage in a newly developed method of selling securities in "packages."

With a few exceptions, which would be subject to individual approval by the exchange, the board of governors ruled that in general the new practice imposes too great a cost upon investors.

The new "package" plan of marketing securities consists of placing the shares of 15 to 25 companies in a single unit, or parcel, which is then sold to the public. Because prices of stocks are now at the lowest levels in a decade, or longer, these parcels can be offered publicly at comparatively low prices.

In its criticism of the system, the exchange held that the cost to the purchaser had been "loaded" too heavily with various brokerage costs, including round lot and odd lot commissions, transfer taxes and a seller's profit.

The exchange listed four principal objections to the plan. It held that "the minimum charge for services to the purchaser is out of proportion to the worth of the services," stating that in some cases the total costs exceed 40 per cent of the actual market valuation of the stocks in the parcel.

It also stated that the selling circulars in many cases concealed the relatively heavy loading charges from the investor; that in some cases where the number of shares of each corporation in a block is very small, the operation is wasteful because of excessive transfer and other charges, and that many of the investment packages contain no dividend-paying stocks and are speculative.

In some instances, the exchange decreed, it might be willing to make an exception provided there is found to be reasonable diversification of securities in the package, that not less than five shares of stock of any company are included in each such offering, and that total charges, including commissions and taxes, on the package shall not be "in excess of 10 per cent for such round lot price."

Drifting, With Sporadic Rallies.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—The bond market drifted today despite sporadic rallies in special issues and the apparent absence of any general urgent liquidation.

Listlessness continued to pervade the majority of loans and high-grade bonds usually kept their price changes within a fractional range. The volume of trading dropped under that of yesterday, sales totaling $10,109,000 par value. The average for 60 corporate securities lost three-tenths of a point.

The most active performers of the day were German government 5½s and Frisco Railway consolidated 4½s. The Reich issue declined in the early part of the session, but rallied for a net gain later following better news from the Lausanne conference.

The Frisco bonds gained 2⅛ points on reports that the road would get a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with which to meet its nearby interest charges.

Outside of a somewhat better tone at the Lausanne gathering, there were few developments during the day that could be construed as affecting the market.

The reduction of the rediscount rate to 2½ per cent was not announced by the New York Federal Reserve Bank until after the close.

The United States Government section held steady throughout.

Gains of from 4 to 5 points were recorded by some foreign issues, including Mansa Steamship 6s, Harpen Mining 6s, El Salvador 8s and Jugoslavia Mortgage Bank 7s. Brazilians and Colombians firmed and the Argentines steadied. Japanese obligations weakened in sympathy with the yen.

Domestic utilities held to their previous price average and the industrials were slightly easier.

COTTON ADVANCES REDUCED AT CLOSE

July Price Rises to 5.19 on Boll Weevil Reports; Liverpool Covers.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—An early advance in cotton on relatively steady cables and boll weevil reports was not fully maintained today but the undertone was generally steady.

July contracts after selling up from 5.17 to 5.24 closed at 5.19 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 2 to 3 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 2 points but buying seemed to be checked at the start by the favorable weather map. Offerings were comparatively light, however, and were readily absorbed by trade buying in the near month.

Market Works Higher.

The market worked gradually higher with the encouragement of steadiness in the stock market and active months sold about 6 to 8 points net higher around midday with December advancing to 5.63. Demand then slackened while no aggressive selling developed, prices worked back some 4 or 5 points from the best, closing within a point or two of the lowest.

Weather news was considered more favorable, but there were further reports of weevil infestation particularly from the Carolinas and Arkansas. As to the latter State, it was said that weevil were more numerous than at any time previously since 1923.

Liverpool, cables reported covering and Bombay buying in that market.

Exports today were 22,573 bales, making 8,336,030 so far this season.

GRAIN TONE FIRMER DESPITE FINAL LOSS

Wheat Price Sags as Corn Advances; Black Rust Influences Market.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Stirred by a brace of big possibilities, wheat and corn showed an undertone of strength today, though wheat sagged at the last, whereas corn advanced.

Increased uneasiness over likelihood of black rust damage formed the chief mainstay of wheat values, with an auspicious outlook for corn export business putting backbone into the corn market. Export demand for wheat at the seaboard, however, was a distinct disappointment, notwithstanding cable advices that some good business with France had been done in American hard winter wheat already afloat.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c lower; corn, ¼c to ⅜c up; oats, unchanged, and provisions, showing a rise of 12 to 20 cents.

Prospects of a black rust scare induced many traders to look upon developments touching spring wheat as all important for the immediate future. Every advance in prices nevertheless demonstrated that commission houses had wheat for sale in amounts larger than the market could readily absorb.

Selling Laid to Hedging.

Some of the selling appeared to represent hedges against newly harvested winter wheat. Then, too, bears contended that anxiety about black rust was premature, that the plague bobbed up every season, and that thus far no damgae had been done.

Crop experts voiced opinions that conditions favored the black rust danger, owing to unusual earliness of the pest. This was coupled, the experts said, with too much moisture and with indications of a heat wave Northwest.

Serving also as a bullish influence were reports that rains were delaying harvest operations in the Texas Panhandle.

Word that grasshopper infestation was spreading in the Dakotas, western Minnesota and Manitoba was also given attention, but with the seaboard estimating only 600,000 bushels taken for export, price gains in wheat failed to hold.

Corn traders showed themselves responsive to an authoritative cable announcement that the outlook was bright for the United States to export corn to Europe this year. It was added that competition from the Danube was not expected to be severe, and that Argentine vessel chartering for corn lacked volume.

Oats kept about stationary.

Provisions were stimulated by hog market upturns.

Gas Stock Battle Off Until August

Arthur Dean's Plans for Wedding Force Postponement.

No developments in the efforts of the Public Utilities Commission to force the foreign owners of the Washington Gas Light Co. to surrender their controlling stock are expected before August 1 at the earliest, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, announced yesterday after a conference with Arthur Dean, attorney for Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation.

Mr. Dean called on the commission chairman to report progress in the matter of working out a proposal to submit to the utilities body as a compromise to obedience to the order. He also called on William A. Roberts, special counsel of the commission, who is in Georgetown Hospital.

As Mr. Dean will get married shortly, he asked for more time to complete the plan he will submit in behalf of the gas company's controlling interests.

CREDIT ASSOCIATION TOLD OF METHOD TO COMBAT STRINGENCY

Rev. A. A. Stockdale Asserts New Enthusiasm Need to Solve Stress.

SUGGESTS HIS HEARERS CONSIDER LIFE AS GAME

Annual Banquet Enlivened by Entertainers; Pending Bills Are Explained.

The need for a new enthusiasm with which to combat the economic stress of the present day was advocated by the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, at the annual banquet of the National Retail Credit Association at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

Dr. Stockdale declared that "there is something better than preaching and that is living." He described the new enthusiasm as "a loyal and commendable devotion to one's work, calling on the reserve powers of creative and inventive genius and patience."

He urged his more than 600 listeners to treat life as a game and to apply to it the same principles and enthusiasm that characterize baseball. "We have returned to the test of pioneer days," he declared, "back to the grace of patience, to the glory of fortitude and to the inventive genius of the human soul."

Members Are Entertained.

Members of the association were entertained with an address by Strickland Gillilan, humorist, and entertainment by Matt Horne and George O'Connor, and vocal selections from the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., male chorus. Mark Lansburgh, president of the Washington Merchants and Manufacturers Association, was toastmaster. Sidney Seidenman's Orchestra furnished music.

Brief talks were made by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee; Frank Batty, of San Francisco, Calif., the outgoing president, and A. P. Lovett, of Kansas City, the newly elected president.

Other new officers, elected earlier in the day, are Charles M. Reed, of Denver, first vice president; P. H. Carr, Minneapolis, second vice president, and Lee M. Jahn, of Houston, Charles M. Keafer, of Washington; Floyd Miller, of Pontiac, Mich.; L. S. Crowder, of Chicago, and W. W. Weir, of Los Angeles, directors.

R. Preston Shealey, Washington, counsel for the association, revealed at a session during the day that enactment by Congress is virtually assured of legislation to rid financially distressed employes from the clutches of loan sharks.

Explains Bankruptcy Bill.

Mr. Shealey explained the Hastings bankruptcy bill, now pending in the Senate, which deals with suspended discharges and amortization in settlement of debts of individuals. This measure was drafted as a result of a study by the association, he said. He announced that representatives of four of the leading railroad brotherhoods and of the American Federation of Labor had indorsed provision for amortization and settlement of debts.

The delegation applauded the reported restoration of part of the 1933 appropriation for the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Mr. Shealey assailed the cut made in the department's bill.

The association heard addresses during the day from W. J. Morgan, of New York; J. L. Fercoit, of New York; James Hayes, of Harrisburg, Pa., and Capt. Harry W. Lyon, of San Francisco, a member of the crew of the Southern Cross on its flight from San Francisco to Australia.

Representative Malcolm Baldridge, of Nebraska, at the morning session, declared there has been a breakdown in the present bankruptcy act as a medium of distribution of assets of insolvent debtors because there are so few assets left by the time bankruptcy occurs that they are not worth administering.

"The act," he said, "has also broken down in its attempt to grant a discharge to honest but unfortunate debtors and to discourage commercial fraud and dishonesty, because practically every bankrupt is given a discharge outright without any real inquiry into his conduct or the merits of his application. Last year 65 per cent of all bankruptcy cases filed in our country had no assets whatsoever."

LECTURER PRAISES DRY LAW AND RAPS MEMORY OF PUBLIC

Rev. Francis Nichol Pleads for Ideals Which Caused Prohibition.

HURLS ATTACK AT PRESS IN ADDRESS TO W. C. T. U.

Person Who Indicts Booze Is Sound Business Man, He Declares.

"Prohibition's worst handicap is the poor memory of the public," the Rev. Francis D. Nichol, editor, author and lecturer for the Seventh Day Adventists American Temperance Society, yesterday told the quarterly meeting of the District of Columbia Women's Christian Temperance Union, in pleading for the ideals on which the eighteenth amendment was founded.

"America has forgotten the real facts that brought about the passage of our law against whisky," he said. The statement brought a burst of applause from the 200 members who filled the auditorium of the Eldbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church, Wisconsin avenue and River road northwest.

Points to Investigation.

"Temperance unions were not the fundamental cause of the constitutional ban against strong drink, but the facts of science and everyday business which can not be overlooked," he declared. He referred to the New York State legislative investigation of 1875, which laid the blame of 75 per cent of the crime of New York City on strong drink. This was followed by references to similar actions on the part of other States prior to the eighteenth amendment.

"The press," the speaker stated, "which once boosted the cause of prohibition, is now so wet that typesetters go around in bathing suits." Prewar editorials from several large daily papers of the country, telling of "bribery and corruption resulting from the liquor traffic," were then read.

"The speaker's idea of facing the prohibition problem," Mr. Nichol stated, "is from a nonreligious standpoint. The prohibitionist of today does not have to descend to fanaticism to prove his statements. The man who indicts booze is not a fanatic, but a sound business man.

Says Revenue Increased.

"With the approach of the World war, brewers and distillers throughout the country declared the doom of the prohibition cause. But the Government placed vast antiliquor restrictions on the soldiers and on the country, and more revenue was raised than ever before in the history of the Nation."

The Women's Christian Temperance Union was called to order yesterday morning at 10 o'clock by its president, Mrs. W. H. Wadleigh. After the opening services and regular business meeting an address of welcome was given by the Rev. Walter M. Michael, pastor of the Elbrooke Church.

MERGER BILL AMONG 11 TO BE CONSIDERED BY SENATORS TODAY

Little Possibility of Traction Measure's Passage Seen, as Blaine Opposes It.

GENERAL LICENSE PLAN SUPPORTERS OPTIMISTIC

$100,000 Would Be Added in District Revenue If Proposal Wins.

Eleven District measures, including the traction merger bill and the broad Gibson license law, will be called up on the Senate consent calendar today.

Under the five-minute consent rule, little hope was held out for the merger bill. Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, has blocked its passage every time it has come before the body this session. Senator Justin (Republican), Vermont, will champion the measure.

Would Add to Revenues.

District officials were in high hopes of obtaining approval of the general license bill, which will raise $100,000 in additional revenues. They also seek to permit the Washington Gas Light Co. to build a $500,000 gas holder on Virginia avenue southeast, near the Navy Yard. The authorization was favorably reported yesterday by both House and Senate District committees.

Four important District measures await House action. Representative Henry T. Rainey, House Democratic leader, said he will try to find time for consideration of the bills next week. They include the gas-holder measure, a general authorization for the Commissioners to close streets, a bill providing a board of indeterminate sentence and parole for the District, and Senate amendments to the firearms bill, unpassed on.

Other Measures.

Bills that may be called up on the Senate calendar this morning include the auto responsibility measure, the Patterson bill tightening local kidnaping laws, a bill regulating bonding practices, one extending steam-boiler inspection, one repealing the law incorporating national trade unions, the street-closing bill, and measures permitting 2½-gallon ice cream containers in the District, and authorizing the Commissioners to sell certain lands.

UNION FUND DEALING EXPLAINED BY EVANS

Declares He Gave $32,000 to Huddell for Purposes of Organization.

Arthur M. Huddell, now dead, former president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, yesterday was named by Dave Evans, former secretary-treasurer of the union, as the man to whom he diverted $32,000 of the union's funds during 1929 and 1931. Evans is charged with embezzlement.

Evans, on trial in District Supreme Court, testified the money had been given to Huddell for organization purposes. He said further the labor trouble that developed in Cleveland made it necessary for Huddell to use the money. Evans said that Huddell often promised to give him receipts for the money, but had neglected to do so at the time of his death.

Evidence to support Evans' contention that he had given the money to Huddell was given by Frank X. Martell, president of the Detroit Federation of Labor, who told of a conversation he had with Huddell in which Huddell admitted to him he had received certain money from Evans.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover rested the Government's case yesterday morning after showing by witnesses that Evans had lost about $30,000 in alleged transactions with bookmakers.

Policemen Fire at Robbers of Store

One Suspect Surrenders; Other Believed Shot Making Escape.

Two colored men who broke into a chain grocery store at 2138 New York avenue northwest, early yesterday, were fired at by police of the Third Precinct as they were leaving the scene of the robbery.

Privates C. F. Lowry and E. Fillmore rushed to the store when a manager of a nearby apartment house heard the men break the glass in the store door, and called the station house. As the police were sighted by the robbers they dropped a quantity of goods and ran.

Harry Parker, colored, 20, of 1509 R street, surrendered when Lowry fired two shots at him. The other man escaped after Fillmore had fired three times at him. It is believed he was hit as a trail of blood led from the spot where he stood. A canvass of all hospitals is being made in an attempt to locate him.

They will remain at camp two weeks. The contingent will be in charge of Carlos A. Gosnell, one of the senior counselors of the camp.

The boys will be under supervision of James C. Ingram, camp director, and a staff of 30 senior counselors.

Boat Picks Choice Spot To Overturn

The small sailboat of William Bertalin, 27 years old, of the Columbia Yacht Club, picked the best spot in the river to capsize yesterday. It tossed Bertalin into the water directly opposite the Harbor Precinct Station.

Privates C. R. Spring and H. S. Carrico were standing on the dock at the Precinct Station and saw the little boat go over. They put out in a police launch and picked up Bertalin, who was floundering in the water. The man was unhurt.

Bedell Being Held For Jury Action

Unable to Raise $25,000 Bond Set at Hearing, He Is Jailed.

William E. Bedell, 35 years old, of 20 F street northwest, was held for grand jury action yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon after a hearing in Police Court on charges of housebreaking and grand larceny. Unable to raise $25,000 bond, he was sent to the District Jail. Bedell is accused of robbing a Western Union office of $1,790 in express checks and $200 in cash on April 8. According to police, $450 worth of the checks were recovered.

There is also an indictment against Bedell for complicity in the liquor robbery at the Salvadorean Legation last year.

Three other men are being held as United States witnesses in the telegraph company robbery. They are Samuel Glasser, 27, of 4712 DeRussey parkway, Chevy Chase; Benjamin Covell, 35, of 1425 Rhode Island avenue northwest, and Frank Courtney, 27, of 7 Logan circle. Two women, who were being held in connection with the case, Ruth Bedell, 28, and Lillian Taylor, 22, were released yesterday.

3 'Gators Arouse Fear of Workers

Commerce Building Has Pay Cut, Furlough and Dismissal.

There are just three things causing a great amount of worry among the thousands of Government employes in Washington—Pay Cut, Furlough and Dismissal. But only those working in the new Department of Commerce Building have actually come face to face with these problems.

From 9 o'clock in the morning until 4:30 in the afternoon, employes of this building are kept on the jump attempting to avoid Pay Cut, Furlough and Dismissal. Even Secretary of Commerce Lamont directs his steps in the opposite direction when confronted with these problems.

But these folks can't be blamed. Pay Cut, Furlough and Dismissal are really something to worry about. They are alligators, and have free run of the entire Commerce Department basement.

The three 'gators came from Chicago, a present of the Bureau of Fisheries. Zoo officials here have refused to accept them. There is no room to house them, they say.

Falling Brick Injures Painter.

While painting in an alley beside 1812 K street northwest, Joseph Few, 34 years old, of 823 Fourth street northeast, was hit on the head by a falling brick yesterday afternoon. He was removed to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for a lacerated forehead and a possible skull fracture. His condition is undetermined.

Test Case Upholds Ban On Gasoline Hucksters

Upheld in a test case in Police Court, the District Commissioners yesterday instructed the Police Department to arrest after July 1 all street hucksters found selling gasoline in violation of an order issued several weeks ago following a public hearing. The hucksters, who have been fighting the order from the first, are expected to apply for an injunction in District Supreme Court.

The ban on street sales of gasoline was promulgated some months ago and later withdrawn while a committee of District officials made a study of the problem. This group recommended that the order be reissued. The Commissioners adopted the recommendation, but, withheld enforcement until the legality of the order could be tested.

Boy Hurt in Attempt To Hitch Auto Ride

An attempt to hitch a ride on an automobile yesterday sent Leonard Miller, 12 years old, of 1323 Columbia road northwest, to Garfield Hospital with a fractured rib and severe bruises. Police say the boy attempted to leap on the tire rack of a machine in the 2000 block of Klingle road northwest.

He missed his footing and fell in the street. The driver of the automobile apparently did not know of the accident and kept going. The boy was picked up by Mrs. Maurice Eanet, of 1721 Irving street northwest, and taken to the hospital.

Former Employe Of Bank Indicted

Bernard L. Mann Accused of Taking $11,850; Is Held in California.

In a special report to Justice James M. Proctor in the District Supreme Court yesterday, the District grand jury indicted Bernard L. Mann, formerly a teller in the Morris Plan Bank, for the alleged embezzlement of $11,850 of the bank's money.

A bench warrant will be dispatched to Los Angeles to facilitate the return of Mann to this city.

Mann was arrested in the California city when he and his bride of a short time were found there on information furnished by a bonding company that had gone on his bond at the bank. He is said to have left the bank at the close of business May 28, and did not return for work when the institution opened May 31. A subsequent investigation disclosed the alleged shortage.

NEW ANIMAL RESCUE BUILDING DEDICATED

Structure Formally Opened at 71 O Street by League; Many Are Visitors.

The most modern and well-equipped facilities for the care and shelter of stray and sick beasts were viewed yesterday by the many persons who attended the formal opening and dedication of the Animal Rescue League's new building at 71 O street.

While a few other cities have larger institutions than the new home here, members of the league believe that the new building compares favorably with the best anywhere.

Yesterday's visitors, welfare workers, social leaders, and others in public life, were invited to the opening. They witnessed a structure which was already occupied by 40 dogs and 10 cats, quartered in kennels, cages and outdoor runways.

The building, of gray fieldstone, has facilities for every type of stray animals. There are two stalls for homeless horses and a compartment designed especially for an animal clinic.

In the main hall a bronze tablet commemorates the gifts of Martha C. Codman and Chester A. Snow, whose generosity made the project possible. Funds from the sale of the old property of the league in the southwest section of the city, helped finance the building.

Contributors to the dog kennels were Miss Alice Clapp, Mrs. H. C. Moses, Mrs. Merton E. Twogood, Mrs. William F. Ham, Miss Agnes V. Geyers, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Geohegan, Miss Ruth Hitchcock, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Simpson, Mrs. Henry Pearsons Erwin and Mrs. H. R. Davis.

Equipment for the cat kennels was donated by A. F. Jorss. Mrs. Geohegan gave the office furnishings and she and Mrs. Ham the flagstone walk and the shrubbery. The contractors who erected the building, Bahn & Wright, also made numerous contributions.

$25,000 Bond Fixed In Chasleton Robbery

Identified by William H. Dunn, auditor of the Chastleton Hotel, as the man who robbed the hotel of $422 last Friday, Albert K. Johnson, 26 years old, was ordered held for the action of the grand jury under a bond of $25,000 when he was given a preliminary hearing in Police Court yesterday.

Dunn testified Johnson came into his office in the Chastleton, pointed a gun at him and forced him to open the cash drawer. After taking the money, Dunn said, Johnson locked him in a closet. Johnson denied complicity in the robbery. He said he was at his home at the time.

Suspect Identified In Theft by Voice

Partially Blind Victim's Testimony Holds Man for Grand Jury.

With only her ears to guide her, Emily Brinbrey, colored, 72 years old, yesterday in Police Court identified William Robinson, also colored, as the man who entered her room at 1345 Sixth street northwest, threw a blanket over her head, choked her and ran from the room with $7 he found in her purse.

The woman is partially blind and is badly crippled and her only method of arriving at the conclusion that Robinson was the man, was by her sense of hearing. She said that she could easily identify his voice.

On the strength of her story Robinson was held for grand jury action under a $3,500 bond on a robbery charge. He was given a preliminary hearing by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon.

STRIKE OF WORKERS DENIED BY SHAPIRO

States Employes Have Not Been Paid Entirely With Food Vouchers.

J. B. Shapiro, president of the Shapiro Construction Co., last night emphatically denied the report that 80 bricklayers and laborers employed by him on the building of homes at Twentieth street and Park road northwest, had gone on strike because they were paid off with food vouchers instead of cash.

Mr. Shapiro branded as false not only the report of the walkout, but also the statement that the men were remunerated entirely with food checks. "All the workmen were paid at least half cash," he said, "and were given food checks which could be cashed at a local store of the District Grocers Association. We were extended $50,000 credit by the association."

"This plan has been in effect for about a month, and gave employment to more than 30 workmen," Mr. Shapiro said. "It was agreed to by the subcontractors for whom the men so paid worked."

The food check and cash system of pay was used only on the construction of 32 new homes at Twentieth street and Park road northwest, Mr. Shapiro explained. He said that the scarcity of construction loans at the present time, which has caused the majority of local builders to suspend construction, and thrown hundreds of men out of work, prompted him to build these 32 houses with his own funds.

All his other building projects, Mr. Shapiro said, including the one at Seventh and Quackenbos streets northwest, are being financed through mortgage and loan institutions, and all men are now, and always have been, paid entirely in cash, he asserted.

Daylight Robber Gets $185 Loot From Home

A daylight burglar yesterday entered the home of Andrew D. Torre, of 5401 Connecticut avenue northwest, and got away with clothing and jewelry valued at $185. Mr. Torre told police entrance was gained through a rear door while the family was away yesterday between 11:45 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.

3 Missing Capital Boys Found in Aberdeen, Md.

Three small boys who were believed to have taken the high road alone to fortune Wednesday night, turned up yesterday in Aberdeen, Md., where the father of one of them is stationed as an Army officer. Worried parents were immediately notified that their sons were safe.

The boys sold extra papers the night of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight and did not report home afterward. They were seen by a neighbor headed across the Arlington Memorial Bridge. They are Ellis Tippett, 14, of 3426 O street northwest; Paul Willis Stout, 14, of 3215 O street northwest; and Roy L. Bowling, 13, of 218 Prospect place northwest. They explained they had merely left to visit Roy's father, Capt. R. L. Bowling, sr.

Floor of Car Buckles, Injuring Passenger

A passenger was injured yesterday when the floor of a Capital Traction Co. street car buckled, according to police reports.

J. Allen Crocker, 21 years old, of 207 Elm street northwest, was riding on a Chevy Chase Lake car. When it turned on U street at Fourteenth the floor is said to have raised, catching his foot. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for a possible fracture of the right foot.

Strickland Gillilan Talks At Kiwanians' Luncheon

A breezy talk by Strickland Gillilan, nationally prominent writer, featured the annual ladies day luncheon of the Washington Kiwanis Club held at the Hotel Raleigh yesterday. Mr. Gillilan amused the Kiwanians by analyzing "swell heads." He contended that "egotism is the anesthetic nature gives man to ease the pain of being a fool."

President Edwin F. Hill introduced the 21 special guests at the speakers' table. The Rev. John Palmer pronounced the invocation and William R. Schmucker led spirited singing.

Child Fractures Shoulder In Fall on Hospital Steps

Billie Jo Hickman, 3, Slips in Play at Naval Laboratory.

A fall down a flight of stone steps at the Naval Hospital grounds yesterday afternoon resulted in a compound fracture of the shoulder for Billie Jo Hickman, 3 years old. She was taken to Emergency Hospital and admitted for treatment.

The child was at play with several other children in the neighborhood. Her mother, Mrs. W. D. Hickman, watched the play from the porch of her home at 2431 E street northwest.

Billie Jo tired of the spot where she was playing and ventured onto the steps leading up the terrace to the Naval Hospital Laboratory. She made the first of three stone steps, but lost her footing on the last one and tumbled to the bottom, bumping her shoulder severely on the sharp edge.

G. C. Dreyfus Not Guilty In Liquor Sale Charge

George Charles Dreyfus was not found guilty of sale of liquor as reported in yesterday's Post. He was tried on an indictment charging sale, possession and transportation but was found guilty of possession alone. The Post regrets the error in the caption.

He was tried in District Supreme Court before Justice F. D. Letts. Through his attorney, William J. Crane, he charged that he had been "entrapped" by the agents who arrested him.

3,000 Will Attend Churches' Outing

Athletic Contests Are to Feature Trip Tomorrow to Seaside Park.

More than 3,000 persons will journey to Seaside Park, Chesapeake Beach, Md., tomorrow to attend a church outing of the Christian Churches of Washington. The party will leave Washington at 2:30 oclock by special train.

A program of inter-Sunday school sports contests has been arranged, featured by a horse-shoe pitching tournament between the Ninth Street Christian Church and the Columbia Heights Christian Church.

The largest delegation, numbering more than 1,000, will represent the Ninth Street Church. Each group will conduct its programs separately.

Other churches to be represented are the National City Christian Church, the H Street Christian Church and the Strauss Memorial Christian Church. A number of Baltimore church delegations will also be present.

Extension of Death Penalty And Lash Urged by Vaughn

Capital punishment for major crimes, such as murder, kidnaping, burglary and criminal assault, and the establishment of the whipping post, with a graduated number of lashes to fit the crime, were advocated by Dr. George Tully Vaughn, noted Washington surgeon and head of the surgical department at Georgetown University, who spoke before the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carleton Hotel yesterday. Dr. Vaughn also advocated sterilization for the insane and for the habitual criminal.

Dr. Vaughn gave a general talk on several subjects. He declared that the eighteenth amendment should be repealed and that there are more alcoholic drinks being used today than ever before.

"We have too many laws," Dr. Vaughn said. "Our criminal code should be simplified to the point where the criminal knows that punishment to fit the crime is assured. We should have capital punishment for the major crimes. For those of lesser nature, I advocate the use of the whipping post with a provision that the criminal shall be lashed sufficiently hard to draw blood. This would humiliate and punish the criminal without depriving his family of his usefulness as a wage earner."

The club voted to hold a night meeting on the third Thursday of each month during the summer.
